Community Gardens Taking Shape in Hinesburg

By June Aschenbach

Hinesburg Community Gardens is developing 20 garden plots which are now available to Hinesburg residents who would like to plant their own vegetable gardens next spring and summer. The gardens offer an opportunity for families who do not have garden space where they live to plant, grow, harvest and preserve their own fresh grown garden vegetables.

The Community Gardens are sponsored by Community Alliance Church, which has donated the land for four large garden spaces, each containing five 10' x 12' garden plots. The Church has also agreed to fence and maintain the overall garden space and provide water. Individual gardeners will be responsible for maintaining their own 10' x 12' garden plot.

The gardens have been in the preparation stage since spring of this year. They have been tilled several times and have been heavily composted. Oats have been planted to add nutrients to the soil, so that it will be in excellent condition for planting in early spring.

For those who are new to gardening, and for those who would like to know more, free gardening classes will be offered in the fall, winter and spring. For those who want to reserve a garden plot the Community Gardens Team is taking reservations now. For more information please contact Sahra Aschenbach at 482-3883 or sahra@gmavt.net.

For Hinesburg's Fourth Annual Fall Festival

By Sally Reiss

As I write this we are still in the midst of summer. Despite the weather challenges, we are still looking forward to a good harvest. With "harvest" in mind, on Saturday, September 26 we will be celebrating Hinesburg's Fourth Annual Fall Festival.

In the last three years the festival has brought together local artists, crafters, farmers and musicians for a celebration of the many talents our community has to offer. The event will once again take place in and around Town Hall starting on the morning of September 26 at 10:00 a.m. and continue throughout the day.

The farmer's market will take place around the stone wall outside of Town Hall and will include an array of fresh local produce, other delicious edibles and interesting hand crafted items. The art show will again be held inside of Town Hall and as always will transform the space into a wonderful gallery. The musicians will be performing throughout the day sharing their talents with us as we enjoy the festivities with our friends and neighbors. There will be some activities planned for kids.

A "Harvest Dinner" and community dance are being planned for the event so stay tuned for more information concerning those activities.

If you would like to participate as an exhibitor or would like to assist others with the event please see the phone numbers that follow. We invite all to become a part of this wonderful day!! So, mark your calendars and get ready to take part in celebrating the wonderful bounties of our Hinesburg community.

There will be schedules available around town as the date draws near so keep and eye out for our pumpkin logo and please join us for a day of fun!!!

Update on Selectboard – Chief Morrell Dispute

As reported in the July 28 issue of the Burlington Free Press, Chief Chris Morrell and the Selectboard have agreed to meet in early September with an arbitrator from Massachusetts. The meeting will be closed, but the arbitrator's report will be made available to the public within 30 days after their session. Chief Morrell has been on paid administrative leave since April due to a dispute over personnel management issues.

Community Band and Chorus Invite New Members

The South County Chorus and the Hinesburg Community Band always welcome new members. An audition is not required, just a little talent and lots of enthusiasm for music. If you are interested in joining either:

Fourth of July Celebration

Fireworks Committee Extends a Big "Thank You"

By Jean Isham, HBPA

July Fourth has come and gone but the fireworks have not been forgotten. A great crowd enjoyed a fantastic evening of music by the Community Band and fireworks. While selling balloons that evening, I heard many favorable comments about the quality and quantity of the fireworks. They are truly appreciated. The community extends its thanks to the Fireworks Committee, which coordinates the event and engages in year round fundraising to make it possible.

Again this year, a major sponsor of the fireworks was Travia's Bar and Grill, which raises funds throughout the year. David and Jan Blittersdorf through their company NRG Systems, Inc. again this year made a wonderful contribution. The continued support from Papa Nick's each and every year is greatly appreciated. Thank you! Attorney Roger Kohn and his helpers consistently raise funds every Fourth of July with the sale of balloons.

The fireworks must be fully paid before July 4 and by December of this year a one-half deposit must be made for the 2010 fireworks. The total cost of the fireworks is approximately $16,000. In addition to the businesses listed below, many individuals also make donations. Most of those donations are made at the jars displayed by various businesses around town. That change and those dollars do add up and do (Continued on page 11.)

TO THE EDITOR

Former Hinesburg Officers Speak in Favor of Chief Morrell

Dear Editor and Citizens of Hinesburg,

I worked for Chief Chris Morrell and the Hinesburg citizens at the Hinesburg Community Police for about 13 years, until 2008. During my time with the department I served as Animal Control Officer, Administrative Assistant and Community Police Officer. With the support of Chief Morrell, I was able to proudly serve the Town as a Police K9 Handler with my partner, Tiger, for several years.

Chief Morrell has been recognized by community members and other police professionals as an expert on community policing. He instructs the new recruits at the Vermont Police Academy on best practices in community policing. His philosophy of working in partnership with the community is a model for Vermont Law Enforcement.

It is unfortunate that some Police Department members and Town Officials have allowed personality conflicts to impede their judgment and try to force Chief Morrell to retire. It is also unfortunate that Chief Morrell has been criticized for not supporting the Deputy Chief of Police. As the department head in a law enforcement agency, the Chief is in charge and is responsible for the overall operation of the department. It is the responsibility of the Officers and the Deputy Chief to carry out the lawful orders and good intentions of Chief Morrell. If any department members do not like their job, they should go elsewhere to work. The philosophy of community policing may not work for them.

I hope the arbitration process allows for a fair and objective review of what has occurred, and I am confident that Chief Morrell will be exonerated and then reinstated so he can get back to serving the people of Hinesburg.

Thank you all.

Barbara Brisson and K9 Tiger

When I opened the paper one morning and read about the suspension of the Hinesburg Police Chief, my first reaction was ...WHAT! Mismanagement? I was stunned. As a former officer of the Hinesburg Police I have had first-hand experience with the chief's management. Chief Morrell had a hands-on style, and for that size of department, I expected no less. He did most of the day to day management items himself but was never unwilling to delegate work to his officers or ask for their input. I found the Chief to be one of my better bosses. He was never unfair, unsympathetic or disrespectful. He always listened to my opinion even if he didn't agree with it. I found most of the time all you needed was persistence, facts and a willingness to participate in the change you wanted and he would usually come around to your way of thinking. Chief Morrell's dedication to community policing was one of the reasons I joined the HCP. I'm upset about what has occurred and feel that too much time has passed on this issue. It's time to let Chris Morrell get back to serving his community as Hinesburg's Chief of Police.

Meadow Marmar

Enough Already

Dear Editor

It boggles the mind why our Chief of Police has been treated in such an unprofessional and disrespectful fashion after 15 years of considerate community policing. It is abundantly clear that politics have now infiltrated the police department where people are being fired to make room for favored employees. Stop this and go back to the professional way the department was run under Chief Morrell.

We attended the Select Board meeting on June 1 with about 50 other citizens. A petition with over 900 signatures was presented to the Select Board expressing our opinion on the plan to terminate Chief Morrell. Did the Select Board members hear what the citizens said and will they take the citizens suggestions into account in making a decision on Chief Morrell?

Last year we saw the Winooski fiasco when an incompetent City Manager tried to fire the Chief of Police and the city had to pick up all the costs for both sides. We have just seen where the Police Chief in Brattleboro received $275,000 because he was fired for political reasons. Who recommended to our Select Board that they begin a similar course of action in Hinesburg? The taxpayers do not have this kind of money to throw around in a witch hunt. Would the Select Board please provide the public a breakdown of what this ill-advised process of terminating the Chief of Police is costing us?

It is a tough enough financial time to be paying for a leave of absence when Chief is ready, willing and able to be at work. Now we tax payers will be picking up the tab for arbitration fees, too.

The police department was evaluated recently by an independent outside consultant and found to have a 92% approval rating by us, the residents of Hinesburg. Why was it necessary to suddenly tear the department apart and attempt to terminate the Chief?

The police department had a K-9 program that was considered one of the best in the state. Almost every week we were reading about drugs found, money seized, lives saved, and interagency cooperation with the K-9 program. Why is this being abolished in Hinesburg?

With all due respect to the Select Board, whether somebody made a mistake, spoke or acted out of turn, let's reinstate Chris Morrell as our Chief and move ahead instead of this long, unnecessary and costly process.

Lacrosse Equipment Stolen Outside Hinesburg Car Wash

Peter Levack is a 16-year-old Hinesburg resident who plays varsity lacrosse for CVU. On Thursday, July 30, all of his lacrosse gear was stolen outside the Hinesburg Car Wash between 10:30 p.m. and 11:00 p.m.

Peter set his gear on the floor of the manual car wash before washing his truck. He drove away from the car wash, forgetting his equipment, but remembered it as soon as he drove by CVU — so he immediately turned around to head back to the car wash and retrieve his gear, but it was already gone.

Mary Thibault of Charlotte saw the young man who took Peter's gear. He was driving a black Volkswagen Golf with tinted windows. She describes him as 16 to 18 years old, with very short hair, thin in stature and approximately 5'9" tall. The value of the stolen equipment was over $700.

If you have any information about this incident, please call the Hinesburg Police Department at 482-3397 or call Peter Levack at 922-4003. Peter is offering a $50 reward to anyone who provides information that leads to his gear being returned.

Good News on Hinesburg's Financial Front

Virtually Level Town Tax Rate and Grant Money Coming Our Way

By Jeanne Kundell Wilson, Town Administrator

Last winter when the Selectboard was preparing the municipal budget for the year that started on July 1, Hinesburg, like many communities across the country, was facing a bleak economic forecast. The downturn in the housing market, the shifting of expenses to local governments, and the loss of revenue due to the closing of the Saputo Cheese facility all had dramatic impacts on the revenue projections for the coming year.

Department heads and the Selectboard were well aware of the projected revenue shortfall during the budgeting process, and chose to delay numerous projects, purchases, and new staff positions. Many of the budgets were either level-funded or decreased from the previous year's funding level. This was a challenging endeavor considering that the cost to provide services to our community in most cases has not decreased. The goal was to maintain the municipal tax rate as close as possible to the previous year's figure of $0.4472.

With finalized numbers available for the fund balance and value of the Grand List, the Selectboard was able to set the tax rate at its July 20 meeting. The rate was set at $0.4501 — an increase of less than three tenths of one cent over last year's rate.

In addition to this virtually level tax rate, the Town also learned during July that it would receive a significant amount of grant funding during this year and beyond, as follows:

- The Town will receive $86,000 from the Vermont Agency of Transportation for paving this summer. The paving budget was significantly impacted during the budget process, and the Town expected to fall behind in the necessary maintenance of Town roads. This grant funding will allow the Town to maintain its paving schedule. So, expect some traffic delays for paving this summer and early fall!

- The Town will receive $1 million in funds from the American Recovery and Reinvestment Act for the wastewater upgrade project. The Selectboard and staff have been working on the planning and permitting for this project for over three years, and its feasibility was put in dire question with the closing of the Saputo Cheese facility. Without this funding, the $2.1 million project would not have been completed. Construction is now set to begin this fall and will be completed in 2010.

- The Town will receive $214,000 through the COPS program to cover salary and benefits for three years for a new police officer. The Federal Office of Community Oriented Policing Services (COPS) was created in 1994 to provide funding for training and technical assistance to advance community policing at all levels of law enforcement. During the budget process, the Selectboard recognized that our police department was short-staffed and that additional help was needed. However, with the state of the economy, the Selectboard did not feel the taxpayers could shoulder the burden of a tax increase to fund an additional officer position. The grant funding will allow the Department to continue to provide the level of service that our community has come to expect and appreciate.

Kudos and thanks to the Selectboard and staff members who worked very hard on trimming budgets, collecting data, preparing grant applications, and being very persistent in getting word of Hinesburg's need out to the appropriate funding agencies. These efforts will help the Town to continue to meet the needs of our community through the coming year.

25 Vermont Communities Net Total of $5 Million for New Police Hires Under Economic Recovery Plan

Sen. Patrick Leahy (D-VT.) recently announced that Vermont will receive $5,045,045 in economic recovery grants to fund the hiring and rehiring of law enforcement officers. The grants to 25 law enforcement agencies across Vermont are administered by the U.S. Department of Justice Office of Community Oriented Policing Services (COPS) through the federal agency's COPS Hiring Recovery Program.

Hinesburg will receive $214,663. The grants provide 100 percent of the approved salary and benefits for newly hired, entry level officer positions over a three year period. Police departments receiving the grants will then be required to retain the grant-funded positions for a fourth year. Leahy said the funding comes amid extreme budget pressures as communities cope with falling revenues under the economic downturn and will help Vermont's law enforcement agencies add and retain the staffing levels needed to fight crime more effectively through community policing.

Last March, Leahy and Vermont Governor James Douglas (R) hosted two statewide conferences — the first in the nation on the stimulus package — in Burlington and Brattleboro to help Vermont families, businesses, and towns learn about how the American Recovery and Reinvestment Act would help strengthen Vermont's economy. One workshop at both conferences was dedicated to accessing first-responder and criminal justice funding opportunities and linked state and local law enforcement agencies to officials within the Department of Justice, helping to give Vermont communities a head start in applying for these COPS grants.

Fire Department to Discuss Expansion and Co-location with Police Department

Wednesday September 16

7:00 p.m., Main Hall, Town Hall

Currently, both the Fire and Police Department buildings are inadequate to meet the needs of the departments. For several years, long-range plans for both departments have included larger facilities and the possibility of housing both in one building. A concept has been developed that would expand the existing Fire Department building for additional vehicles and provide enough space for the Police Department. A large meeting/training room would be utilized by both departments and would be available for public functions. Join us Wednesday, September 16, at 7:00 p.m. in the Main Hall of Hinesburg Town Hall to discuss the possibilities for the expansion/co-location and possible uses for the rest of the Town owned lot.

Hinesburg Hires Marketing/Design/Web Consortium to Increase Ride Sharing

By Andrea L. Grayson, EdD, MA

Hinesburg, through its community-organized transportation group, Hinesburg Rides, has assembled a specialized team to implement a $50,000 grant to increase ride-sharing in, from, and through Hinesburg.

The three different components of the project required specialized expertise: creating a web-based ride-matching system; designing and identifying development; and developing a marketing plan that would tie it all together. Through its Request for Proposal (RFP) process, the town cherry-picked a team to meet each of those needs: Feather River Productions of Waitsfield for the web site; The Image Farm of Middlebury for the creation of design and identity; and Dr. Andrea Grayson of Charlotte, for the marketing plan.

"We thought about the various components of the project and who we thought would be the best fit for each part. We're fortunate to have been able to assemble the team this way," says Alex Weinhagen, Director of Planning and Zoning for Hinesburg, and one of the leaders in this effort.

Feather River Productions, led by James Foreman, is a Waitsfield-based web design and programming company that will be building an online ride-matching system to facilitate carpooling and ride-sharing in and through Hinesburg. Other web-based components, including outreach and promotions, will also be coordinated by Feather River. Foreman, working as Project Manager, will be working with a team of content and technology developers at his company to bring the web component to life.

The Image Farm, a design and branding company in Middlebury, was chosen for their streamlined design sense, and experience with other local transportation projects. Partners Pam and Matt Heywood redesigned the route map and schedule system for Addison County Transit Resources (ACTR) and also created an identity for the Addison County Safe Routes to School campaign which encourages children to safely walk, bike, and use public transit to school.

Dr. Andrea Grayson of Charlotte is managing the marketing component of this initiative and has expertise in creating media for social change. She will be integrating behavior-change strategies into the outreach and marketing efforts of the team. One of her recent projects includes a web-based video series for college students called Mayhem State which addresses student risk behaviors, including excessive alcohol consumption, risky sexual activity, and issues of bias. She says the Hinesburg project will involve a lot of education and awareness-raising "because people have the misperception that ride-sharing is inconvenient. What's inconvenient about saving money, reducing pollution, and making friends?"

The $50,000 grant comes from the Chittenden County Metropolitan Planning Organization, which awarded the grant in May to help Hinesburg develop transportation options for the town to reduce congestion and pollution in the village. Since Hinesburg is a through-way for many commuters south and west of the village of Hinesburg, the outreach effort will also extend into Addison County and the southern Chittenden towns of Shelburne and Charlotte.

Weinhagen says that they are planning to launch the website in October, contingent on how long it will take to develop and test. "Community members can expect to see lots of activity around this through the fall, and then again in the spring." Several special events and contests are in the planning stages, he says.

The main web address for the initiative will be www.hinesburgrides.org, and there will be some initial information posted by the beginning of August. For further information, please contact Andrea Grayson at 238-4433.

Selectboard Seeks Assistance on Municipal Budget Agency Request Review Committee

By Jeanne Kundell Wilson

At the 2008 Town Meeting, it was suggested that the Selectboard consider appointing a committee to review, evaluate, and prioritize requests for appropriations from social service agencies that serve the residents of our community. This committee would make a recommendation to the Selectboard on the level of funding for agencies as part of the annual process of preparing the municipal budget. To give this suggestion a trial run, the Selectboard encouraged formation of a group of volunteers to review agency requests for the budget to be presented to voters in 2008.

The Selectboard found the efforts of this ad hoc group and its recommendations to be of great value and would like to move forward this year by creating a formal committee to continue this work. If you are interested in assisting with this process and would like to be considered for a Selectboard appointment, or to find out more information, please contact Town Administrator Jeanne Wilson at 482-2096, hinesburgtown@gmavt.net or via mail to PO Box 133, Hinesburg, VT 05461.

Skeffington was following too closely and struck the rear of Phelps' car, forcing it into a spin. Phelps' car came to rest when it struck a utility pole. Phelps sustained multiple injuries and Skeffington's face struck the steering wheel. Both women were back-boarded and transported to Fletcher Allen for evaluation and treatment.

Police Get Federal Grant

Hinesburg will be getting an additional officer as the result of being awarded a federal grant of $214,000. The money will be used to fund a full time officer for a three-year period and it includes all expenses for training, salary and benefits. Twenty-five departments around the state received grants designed to put more cops on the streets of Vermont. Hinesburg has started the difficult process of looking for the right person capable of working in a community policing atmosphere. Officer Frank Koss was the driving force behind the Department receiving this grant.

Man Arrested for Insurance Fraud

Vergennes resident John Laflam was arrested on July 4 and charged with insurance fraud. Laflam had reported his car stolen on April 20. An investigation conducted by Deputy Chief Fred Silber indicated that the car had been sold for scrap that same day of the reported theft by Laflam's son, Chris. When told by police that his son had taken the car, Laflam withdrew his criminal complaint. The following day he reported the theft to his insurance company and provided them with false and misleading information in order to fraudulently obtain money for his car. Laflam made his first appearance in court on July 27.

Motorcyclist Injured in Crash

On July 10 a motorcyclist, Keith Champine of Middlebury, was injured when he crashed his motorcycle. He was traveling north on Route 116 approaching Place Road. A truck two cars ahead lost a wheel. The car behind the truck slammed on his brakes. Champine was following too closely to this car and crashed into the rear bumper, causing his bike to go down. Champine sustained a laceration to his right elbow and other injuries requiring medical care.

Hinesburg Man Charged With DUI

On July 20 the Hinesburg police received a phone tip advising that a seriously intoxicated man was driving in the area of Texas Hill Road. A description of the vehicle was broadcast over the police channel and the car was observed and stopped by a Sheriff's deputy. Officer Koss and Deputy Chief Silber responded to the scene and determined that the driver was Jaroslav Case, a Hinesburg resident. Officer Koss administered road side sobriety tests to Case and determined that the driver was impaired, by over four times the legal limit. He was arrested and charged with DUI.

Man Charged with Larceny

The Hinesburg General Store reported a $300 theft from their register. An internal investigation was conducted and it was found that an employee, James McCoy had stolen the money. After McCoy was terminated, Officer Frank Koss was contacted and assigned the case. McCoy had relocated and Officer Koss conducted an investigation to determine his location. Koss located McCoy in St. George and charged him with Petit Larceny. McCoy is scheduled to answer the charges on August 10.

Four Charged with Criminal DLS

Four separate incidents resulted in traffic arrests. On June 5 Officer Kim Moore stopped a car for speeding. The driver, Ryan Timmerman of Burlington, gave her a driver's license that was criminally suspended.

On July 8 Officer Chris Bataille stopped a vehicle that had an improper license plate. The driver, Jamie Kilburn of Burlington, was unable to produce a valid license. Officer

Bataille ran a check of his license and found that Kilburn had an extensive history of traffic violations and was criminally suspended.

The following day Officer Bataille stopped another driver, James Duncan, who was also driving with a criminally suspended license.

On July 13 Officer Frank Koss stopped a vehicle driven by Timothy Bora of Middlebury. Officer Koss discovered that Bora's license was criminally suspended as a result of a recent DUI.

All four drivers were arrested.

Future Firefighters Make Their Debut

The Future Firefighters of Hinesburg joined the Hinesburg Fire Department in this year's Fourth of July parade. While it may be at least 15 years before they are responding to calls, the Future Firefighters are already showing interest spending time with Mom or Dad at the fire station.

Thank you to Harry Russell and his team of horses, and the Russell Farm in Starksboro for the wagon. A special thank you to our spouses who rode with the Future Firefighters, and allow us the time to train and respond to calls at all hours.

Safety Stickers and File of Life

Are there children or elderly persons in your home? Is there a disabled person or someone who requires assistance getting around? What about pets?

Hinesburg Fire Department has stickers available for your home. In addition to the standard Tot Finder Stickers, which everyone is familiar with, there is also a yellow sticker available which indicates a special needs or elderly person. A pamphlet is available with the Tot Finder which explains proper placement of the sticker.

The stickers are no longer placed in windows. They are now placed on the lower corner of the bedroom door, opposite the hinge side. This allows firefighters to see the sticker when they are crawling along the floor. Pet Finders stickers are available at the Hinesburg Animal Hospital on Commerce Street.

The File of Life is a file which contains your medical history, medications and allergies. The information is placed on a card, which is folded and put into a pouch with a magnetic strip. The pouch is then placed on your refrigerator. There is also a sticker which is placed on your door which alerts emergency responders that there is a file in the home.

For further information on the Stickers or File of Life, please stop by the station or email Info@hinesburgfd.org. File of Life is also available from the Hinesburg Community Police.

H.C.S. Summer Program Learns Fire Safety

On July 28 members of H.F.D. visited the Hinesburg Community School summer program with the State Fire Safety Trailer. Before entering the trailer students learned about proper use of the 911 emergency system, evacuation plans, meeting places and what to do is they are unable to get out of their rooms.

The Safety Trailer has a kitchen and bedroom. In both rooms, the students learn about fire safety. The kitchen teaches not to use metal pans in a microwave and not to leave dish towels or pot holders near the stove or oven. A fire extinguisher (Continued on the next page.)

The bedroom shows extension cords should not be twisted or in knots and not to plug too many things into an outlet. Candles should not be used near a bed. The bedroom also has a smoke simulator. Once students have found and learned about bedroom safety, the room is filled with "smoke". Students then leave by a window, climb down a small ladder and proceed to a meeting place.

Update from the Chief

By Al Barber,

Hinesburg Fire Chief and Emergency Manager

Important Public Meeting

On September 16 at 7:00 p.m. at the Town Hall, there will be an informational meeting around the Public Safety facility plans for the community. This meeting is to share with the community the planning that has been done around the needs of the Fire Department and Police Department facilities. This meeting is to explain what planning has been done, what we hope to do and discuss the services the community feels they want to have in the future from us so we can better plan. We hope that everyone will make an effort to attend, both supporters and those that have input about our services. The Fire Department has been doing formal strategic plans for five years which has been posted on the town website. We recently applied for an ARRA stimulus grant for the Fire Station construction. This is the only part that was allowed in the ARRA grant program.

For the past ten years, as Fire Chief, I have been promoting the need in our community for impact fees on new development to help pay for needed equipment and facilities. The Selectboard is near the point of adoption of the ordinance. This meeting will help show community support for public safety and the need for a public safety impact fee to fund needed equipment and facilities. We envision the facility expansion some time within the next three to four years unless we receive a grant. Even then it will require a community vote of support prior to construction.

Please join us.

Planning for H1N1

Recently there is again much information going around on the possible impact of influenza this fall. At this point one of the first steps is to set up some community networks to help check on each other should a large outbreak occur. There are many of these networks in place already. Some of these networks are family, friends, school, church, neighborhood watch and town committees. Now is the time to bolster these contacts. Should wide spread influenza arrive in the area many of our normal everyday activities will need to be changed or even suspended. Hospitals will not be where you go should you have the flu until you become extremely ill, instead community based services will be set up. This is also where the local networking will come into play. That networking only needs to be a simple daily phone call to say "how are you?". Should you or someone else be ill then this will be bring other phone calls to alert others that someone needs care. This part is still being worked on. We will update you through The Record and other media outlets as more is developed. Remember to develop your networks now. In September I will organize a community meeting with the area service groups and churches to help update everyone.

If you have any questions please call me at 482-2687 or email at VT1320@aol.com or dial 211 for informational services.

Recycle North Receives Grant To Grow Green Jobs Training

From Press Release

ReCycle North has been awarded a $10,000 grant by the Jan & David Blittersdorf Foundation. The grant will support ReCycle North's YouthBuild program and Energy Efficient Project.

ReCycle North provides weatherization training opportunities and service within its YouthBuild program. The Energy Efficiency Project protects the environment by reducing CO2 emissions from poorly insulated housing stock, trains at-risk youth in an industry which provides a livable wage, and expands access to energy efficiency programs to provide substantial relief for low-income families.

Over the course of this project, 20 disadvantaged youth, who have dropped out of high school, will earn a living stipend, learn energy efficiency skills, and have the chance to complete their high school education while developing vocational and leadership skills before graduating and becoming gainfully employed. This project will support the only local program that provides construction and energy efficiency skills, leadership training and academic services to high school dropouts, while making progress toward improving both the quality and efficiency of housing.

ReCycle North is receiving referrals of low- and moderate-income families in need of weatherization services from CVOEO, and has future plans to subcontract services to Vermont Gas, Burlington Electric and CEDO.

Funding from the Blittersdorf Foundation will also allow ReCycle North to assess the efficacy and modify identified areas in need of improvement of the YouthBuild Energy Efficiency Project.

The Blittersdorf Foundation, located in Hinesburg, is committed to promoting the development of renewable energy sources, building a sustainable world infrastructure, and celebrating arts and culture in order to help society make better long term choices while lessening the impact on world energy and natural resources.

Hinesburg Development Receives Housing Endorsement

From Press Release

Hinesburg's Thistle Hill development was recently awarded Housing Endorsement from the Vermont Smart Growth Collaborative. This designation is given to new residential developments that are consistent with Vermont's historic pattern of compact, walkable villages and cities surrounded by working rural lands.

"Thistle Hill is a strong model for how to build new neighborhoods that fit Vermont," said Noelle MacKay, Executive Director of Smart Growth Vermont, a member of the Vermont Smart Growth Collaborative. "It will provide homes for middle-income Vermonters in the kind of walkable community that so many people are looking for."

The developer of Thistle Hill is Hinesburg Hillside, LLC, an affiliated company of Sterling Construction, Inc., which is based in South Burlington. Construction is underway, with 57 homes to be built over the next five years by Sterling Construction.

"We're excited to have received Housing Endorsement for this project," said Bart Frisbie, a partner in Hinesburg Hillside. "It was designed and is being built with so many of the endorsement criteria in mind, from the village location to the mix of housing types. It's great to see the traditional Vermont-style work that we do recognized and honored in this way."

The community includes single family homes, duplexes, and condos for seniors. It is within walking distance of Hinesburg's village center, with a wide range of services and jobs located close by. It has sidewalks along the streets as well as walking paths in a conserved wooded area, making it easy for residents to get around without getting in their cars.

Young Patrons Enjoy A Tea Party At Brown Dog Books & Gifts

By Jean Isham, HBPA

Vermont author and illustrator Sarah Dillard's reading of her book, Perfectly Arugula, provided the impetus for an enjoyable Saturday tea party held on July 25, 2009 at Brown Dog Books & Gifts. As evidenced by the picture below, everyone was having a great time!

The event started with the author reading her book. Welcome to Arugula's tea party! Everything's going to be just perfect, because that is exactly how she likes things. The problem: perfection is no fun for her guests. They're too nervous to touch or eat anything. And when someone unexpected arrives, Arugula's horrified, especially when everyone seems to like him better than her.

This was a special treat for the young guests, not only to meet the author, but to enjoy her reading of the book and the tea party.

Merchants Bank's "Vermont Matters" Campaign Showcases Success of Client Relationships

From Press Release

The secret to success—in banking and in business—is building personal, face-to-face relationships. That's the message of a new Merchants Bank marketing campaign that celebrates the bank's success by sharing just a few stories of the many meaningful banking relationships Vermont's only independent statewide bank has nurtured over its long history.

Entitled "Vermont Matters," the campaign will be telling the stories of unique Vermont businesses, organizations and individuals which Merchants Bank has helped succeed – and whose success has in turn contributed to the healthy growth of the bank.

The campaign uses new media to engage customers and is centered on the launch of a new website, www.VermontMatters.com, which brings the story of rewarding banking relationships to life in vivid and authentic detail.

Using mini-documentary video vignettes, the site reveals the rich texture of the relationships between Merchants Bank and a sample of its thousands of customers. The introductory phase of the campaign conveys the spirit of native Vermont businesses, the struggles and successes of each company and how a trustworthy banking partner has helped them flourish. The videos include profile information on each subject as well as interviews with leaders, founders and employees expressing their thoughts about their business and Merchants Bank. The site serves as a gateway for prospective customers to learn what a relationship with the bank might do for them. "Over the years, Merchants Bank has forged tens of thousands of mutually productive relationships with businesses and households throughout the state of Vermont," says Thomas S. Leavitt, Merchants Bank Executive Vice President.

HBPA "Support Local Businesses" Display at Hinesburg Fall Festival

Again this year, the Hinesburg Business and Professional Association (HBPA) will be promoting local businesses at the annual Fall Harvest Festival on Saturday, September 26 through a display at Town Hall. All local businesses are encouraged to participate in the "Buy Local - Support Your Local Businesses" display - you need not be an HBPA member to participate. Simply submit a business card, flyer or other postable material (maximum size per business of 8-1/2" by 11") to the HBPA, and the information will be included in the display. The display will be located in a prominent location at the festival.

Print-ready items may be emailed to jwilson@gmavt.net, or items can be mailed to HBPA, PO Box 77, Hinesburg, VT 05461, or they can be delivered to Jeanne Wilson at the Town Hall by Friday evening, September 25th.

This is an excellent (and free) way to promote business and encourage the community to buy local.

Vermont Panurgy, Inc. Providing Information Technology And Training

By Jean Isham, HBPA

Panurgy is a technology and training company. I recently sat down with Eric Herbert, its President, to learn more about this progressive company. On the technology side, Panurgy focuses on computer networking, ongoing support, installation and maintenance for businesses ranging from the small micro business of 5 employees to medium size businesses of 150-200 employees. The company also works with State and local governments as well as educators from K - 12 to higher education.

For micro businesses, Panurgy essentially becomes their information technology help desk. Micro businesses often do not have the resources to support a technology position as part of their staff. With medium size businesses, Panurgy's work is more projects based. Panurgy will do installations and upgrades to augment those businesses' staff resources.

On the training front, Panurgy offers professional development, technical certification, web and graphic, and PC application classes. Classes can include customer service skills, management skills, Microsoft Power Point, Word, Excel, Adobe Photoshop and Cisco, and Microsoft certification. A recent offering included a class that was highly technical. The class was geared to people with certain technical skills, people new to the field and people looking for certification to increase salary. Certifications can increase salary by approximately $2,000 per year.

Panurgy also offers application classes such as Microsoft Word, Excel and Power Point ranging from the very basics to advanced skills, broadening the student's exposure to the application. Eric noted that ninety percent of the people use only ten percent of an application's functionality. Panurgy hopes to shift that to fifty percent of the people using fifty to seventy-five percent of an application's power. Other functions include web technology as well as graphics such as Adobe Photoshop, Dreamweaver, html, Microsoft front page, etc. Those applications are designed for graphic artists or graphic professionals as well as the small business owner or company managers who do their own web sites or for the casual user who just wants to learn how to work with the photographs they take.

Eric emphasized that they are a very face to face business. Feedback from customers has consistently supported the fact that people still value in person training and support. He said they have people who take web classes that later come to Panurgy to repeat the class because they feel that they have not gotten what they need out of the web class.

As the company grows it will offer different training to meet customers' needs such as classes on various SaaS (Software as a Service) and PaaS (Platform as a Service) technologies. Software as a Service is best described as a pay as you go service model. The customer isn't buying the software they are renting it. The customer pays a monthly fee. It has true business value as it is inexpensive and the customer is not required to make a large upfront investment. Many of the SaaS and PaaS companies are small and do not have the resources to train their new customers. That is where Panurgy comes in. What Panurgy is building for the future is training offerings for web based technology.

Eric said that in a recession the training business will waiver a little bit but the information technology and networking services will increase. Companies who are the first to lay off employees will use Panurgy to fill that gap until they are able to hire someone again. Projects may be put on hold but the day to day technological needs do not stop.

Eric describes Panurgy as a solid, growing company that will not walk away from its core offerings but will enhance its offerings to serve the needs of businesses and institutions in the future.

Panurgy emphasizes its community focus such as the free career transition classes to benefit unemployed workers as well as the Vermont Department of Labor. Classes were a full two days and assisted the Vermont Department of Labor staff who face an unprecedented work load during this recession.

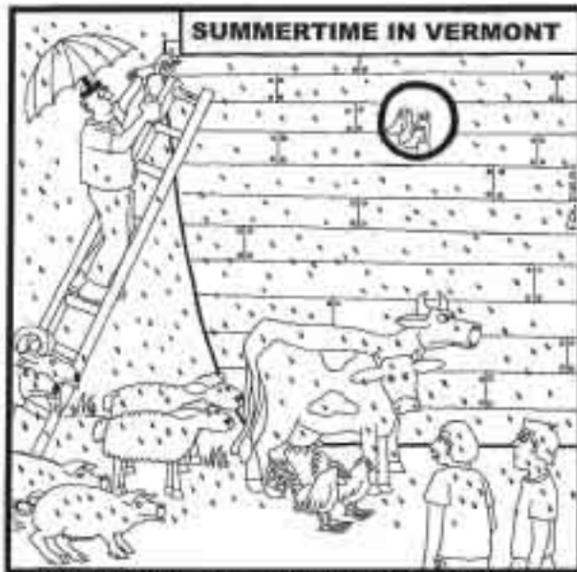

Panurgy offers free technology application classes to returning Veterans to enable Veterans to bring themselves up-to-date on technology advances within their company. Eric said they hope this will relieve some of the stress for returning Veterans.

In addition to the above offerings, each employee receives paid time off for community service. The company currently has over 20 employees.

The history of this company dates back to 1983 when Champlain Computers was formed. In the mid 1980's the owner of Champlain Computers and a partner purchased another company and formed Computerland of Vermont. Around 1998 Computerland of Vermont was sold to Panurgy, a conglomerate that was purchasing IT services companies in New England. In 2001, previous owner Diane Kerbaugh had the ability to buy the company back and formed Vermont Panurgy Corporation. In March of 2009, Eric purchased the company and renamed it Vermont Panurgy, Inc. Eric had known Diane since 1996 and Diane continues to work for the company, focusing on sales and business development. He said Diane is really passionate about helping Panurgy's customers. Eric described the transition as perfect timing. Diane wanted to focus on sales and he liked the overall management of the business in addition to having a strong sales and marketing background. The business is continuing to grow and he anticipates adding another five employees by the end of next year.

A native of Buffalo, New York and graduate of the University of Buffalo with a degree in entrepreneurial management, Eric was living and working in Boston when he purchased Panurgy. Eric and his wife Laurie moved to Underhill in March of this year. Their son, named August, was born July 22. Having Laurie's sister and family already living in the area made the transition easier. Both Eric and Laurie enjoy the outdoors in general and skiing in particular. In addition, Eric is an avid cyclist enjoying both mountain biking and road biking.

You may contact Panurgy at 21 Gregory Drive, Suite 3, South Burlington, Vermont 05403, by telephone at 802-658-7788, by fax at 802-859-9407, or check out its web site at www.panurgyvt.com. Eric Herbert can also be contacted by e-mail at eherb@panurgyvt.com.

We snuck in the 29th annual Hilly Hobble run between showers on the evening of July 3. Despite the rain right up to registration time, we had a strong turnout of 35 runners ready to test their fitness level in three different race lengths. The 2K race was for any participants 12 and under while older runners selected from either the 5K or 10K. This year we had 11 participants in the 10K race, the high water mark for quite sometime. For the second year in a row we even had a costumed mother and daughter! Thanks to all those who participated, volunteered to help coordinate the race or simply cheered on the runners. We hope to see you again next year. Here are the results for the 2009 Hilly Hobble.

Thank You, Hinesburg!

By Earla Sue McNaull

With the help of 25 people on various days we moved books on July 1, sorted books on July 2, set up the tables and arranged the categories on July 3, sold books, tapes and videos on July 4 - before and after the parade - and finished with a free day on Monday, July 6, then packed all remaining books into two volunteer's pickup trucks and took them to recycling. Along the way, volunteers delivered books to Women Helping Battered Women, the Lund Center, the HCS summer program, the Waterbury library for an upcoming sale and videos to Recycle North. We hope that many of the boxes of free books which were taken on Monday also wended their way to charitable entities.

At three o'clock on Monday the tables had been put away, the floor swept, the cardboard broken down, and another book sale was history. We netted over $2500 for the Friends of the Library which supports the library's extra items not in the budget, such as the purchase of the Bookmobile, the lattices and plantings in front of the building, the bike rack, the display case and some programs. Not only do I need to thank

Tiffany Windows Can be Viewed at Shelburne Church

By Lori Wilson

In view of the Shelburne Museum exhibit, "Louis Comfort Tiffany: Nature by Design", Trinity Episcopal Church in Shelburne is offering tours of the sanctuary, which feature Tiffany windows. We invite anyone wishing to see the eastern windows above the altar lit up in the morning, to join us for worship on Sunday morning at 8:00 a.m. or 10:00 a.m. There will also be volunteer tour guides available from 2:30 p.m. to 6:30 p.m. through October 17, Wednesdays, Thursday, and Saturdays except for September 19 when a wedding has been scheduled. The western and southern windows are aglow in the afternoon and can be appreciated and viewed at close range.

Drop by October 3. A guide will be available from 11:30 a.m. to accommodate those taking a joint tour of the Shelburne Museum Brick House and the Shelburne Farms Inn on that date. However, the schedule may change in the event of an additional wedding or of funeral arrangement.

All of the windows in the sanctuary at Trinity Church come from Tiffany studios, including six memorial windows signed by Louis Comfort Tiffany. The subject of those six windows, featuring saints and angels, show less of the

Warren Kimble's America Opens in Lighthouse

The newly renovated 1871 Lighthouse at the Shelburne Museum is the perfect setting for favorite works by the country's best known contemporary folk artist. Warren Kimble's America features the Vermont artist's beloved barns, flags, landscapes and delightfully whimsical animals. Recent abstract works are also on view for the first time. Generously sponsored by TD Banknorth, it will be on exhibit until October 25.

Join the Arbor Day Foundation: Receive Free Trees

Everyone who joins the Arbor Day Foundation during August will receive ten free Colorado blue spruce trees. The free trees are part of the nonprofit Foundation's Trees for America campaign, a program dedicated to environmental stewardship through the planting of trees.

"Colorado blue spruce trees can be used in many beneficial ways," said John Rosenow, chief executive of the Arbor Day Foundation. "Homeowners can use them as ornamental trees, as an energy-saving windbreak, for privacy and as living Christmas trees."

The trees will be shipped postpaid between October 15 and December 10, at the right time for planting. The six to 12-inch trees are guaranteed to grow or they will be replaced free of charge. Planting instructions are enclosed with each shipment of trees.

Members of the Arbor Day Foundation will also receive The Tree Book, which includes information about tree planting and care, and Arbor Day, the Foundation's bimonthly publication.

To receive the free trees, send a $10 membership contribution to Ten Blue Spruces, Arbor Day Foundation, 100 Arbor Ave., Nebraska City, NE 68410, by August 31 or join online at www.arborday.org.

WANTED!
WELL MANAGED & LOCALLY OWNED!

If you have seen the whereabouts of your locally owned propane dealer, by all means let us know.

Why, you might ask? Because all of them in Chittenden County (except one) have sold out to out-of-state corporations. So the friendly local propane company you once knew is now controlled by larger, more distant managers who probably know little about you or your heating and propane fuel needs.

Not so at Patterson Fuels! Our team of well trained experts are managed by folks who own the company and live right here in Chittenden County. They know what your needs are and what it takes to ensure your complete satisfaction.

So if you want to keep your business here in Vermont, then turn to the company that has been family owned for over 60 years -

Fourth Annual CVU Craft Fair Planned for October 17

One Day Event Raises Support for Access Community Education Scholarship Fund

This year's Access to CVU Craft Fair in Hinesburg will be held on Saturday, October 17 from 9:00 a.m.-5:00 p.m. All vendors bring their own hand-made works from around the state, and each year the diversity of beautiful and useful items has increased.

In the past, the craft fair ran for two days. "We have decided to change to a one day event this year after hearing the feedback from vendors and shoppers. We will continue to offer free parking and admission for shoppers, as well as offer great food at great prices," explains Eddie Krasnow, co-director along with Duncan Wardwell of Access Community Education.

Although many of the vendors from last year are already signed up, there is still room for vendors interested in joining the event this year. Held in the CVU gym, the atmosphere is spacious, friendly, and welcoming to the whole family.

Like last year, any money raised through the raffle and lunch sales will help support the Access Scholarship Fund set up to help eighth graders attend the CVU Summer Camp next year as well as help support those in our community unable to fully pay for Access courses during the year.

For crafters interested in participating this year, contact Eddie at eddie@cvuhs.org or 482-7194.

Annette's Playschool Joins Vermont's STARS Program

Vermont's Child Development Division (CDD) announced that Annette's Playschool, a licensed child care center in Hinesburg, directed by Shawn Brier, has joined Vermont's Step Ahead Recognition System (STARS) for child care, preschool and after school programs with three stars of recognition.

STARS providers are recognized for achievements in five areas: compliance with state regulations; staff qualifications and training; daily activities, interaction and overall support of children, families, and the community; how thoroughly providers assess what they do and plan for improvements; and the strength of the program's operating policies and business practices. Three star programs offer a solid program while working to accomplish specific goals. These programs have made substantial achievements either with many accomplishments in two or three areas or strong practices across all areas.

Annette's Playschool has been part of the Hinesburg community for the past 29 years. The program offers care for children ages six weeks to 12 years. There is a very dedicated and close knit staff who work very hard to plan a weekly, age appropriate curriculum and to meet the needs of each child at Annette's Playschool. This spring the program submitted its first application for the STARS program (STep Ahead Recognition System) and it is extremely proud and excited to have achieved three Stars.

"We are pleased to welcome Annette's Playschool to the STARS program," said Steve Dale, Commissioner of the Department for Children and Families. "This achievement confirms their commitment to providing quality child care and education, and we look forward to many other Chittenden County child care, preschool and after school programs joining them."

Adults Needed as Mentors

By Ginny Roberts

The Connecting Youth Mentoring Program at the Hinesburg Community School is beginning its sixth year and is looking for adults to serve as mentors. This is a great experience for mentors, and students benefit tremendously.

The CY Program matches adult mentors with youths aged 11 to 13 who would benefit from the extra attention of a caring adult. Mentors meet for an hour each week with their mentee at the school, during school hours. A Mentor Room at the Hinesburg School provides a place to relax, play games, do crafts or explore a child's interest. This relationship develops into a friendship that both the youth and adult enjoy.

The value of these programs can't be underestimated. Throughout the country, mentoring programs have proven that youths benefit greatly from this caring and trusted relationship. The students gain self-esteem and improve their relations with other adults in their lives. Research also shows that youths with mentors are less likely to engage in risky behavior while being mentored.

The Mentoring Program at the Hinesburg Community School continues to grow. Last year, 32 students were matched with adult mentors. The impact on these community youths has been significant.

In addition to weekly meetings, mentors also participate in group celebrations and a field trip at the end of the year. Mentors receive training and support throughout the year from Program Coordinator, Ginny Roberts. Mentors are asked to make a commitment to meet with their mentee for one school year. Most adults enjoy the experience and

Drive or Wear a Piece of Political History for a Good Cause

Ben Cohen, philanthropist and co-founder of the Ben and Jerry's Ice Cream Company, has kindly donated two articles from the recent historic presidential election, one you can wear, the other, you can drive, to Good News Garage to auction for charitable purposes: Cohen's own Obama Campaign Cargo Van and his George W. Bush Costume.

The first listing for auction, Ben Cohen's Ford Econoline E-Series cargo van, was a feature of Ben Cohen's tour across New England for President Barack Obama's bid for The White House. It is a black, Model Year 2000, rear-wheel drive cargo-type van, with 110,158 miles; completely inspected by Good News Garage. It features a CD player, air conditioning, and has large storage capabilities for carpentry, construction, or moving needs. The fiber glass rocket missile has been removed from the roof. This auction is featured at eBay Motors, item number 250473631611. It can also be searched using the title, "Ben Cohen's Obama Campaign Van Ford E Series EC1500."

The second listing for auction, Ben Cohen's George W. Bush Costume, which was a featured throughout Cohen's tour promoting President Barack Obama. The costume includes two blazers (52XXLong, W48) and a high quality rubber George W. Bush mask, all in excellent condition. This auction is featured on eBay, item number 250473686019. It can also be searched using the title, "Ben Cohen's Obama Campaign George W. Bush Costume".

Proceeds from these charity auctions will be used in Good News Garage Vermont's JumpStart program, which repairs donated cars, trucks and vans for working parents in need living in Vermont. Don't miss out on a chance to drive, or wear, a piece of Vermont's own - and now our national - political history.

To donate a car, truck or van to Good News Garage call toll-free (877) 448.3288 or submit your car donation online at www.GoodNewsGarage.org. All vehicle donations are tax deductible.

Fountain of Youth

By Dave Melnick

Many of our kids seem to be blamed for being terribly out of balance. They are "plugged in" like never before, spending hours on-line, gaming, watching television and madly texting. The fountain of youth once represented a child's endless energy, creativity, imagination, risk-taking, naivety and abundant time exploring interpersonal relationships. For too many kids, that fountain has run dry.

The choices our kids make occur within the context of a relationship with caregivers. The use of excessive media is less a failure of decision making by our children as it is an epidemic of apathy, fear and helplessness among adults. These adults often believe that they have little or no authority or influence on this generation's insatiable hunger for electro-relatedness. While my concern is not particularly novel, my perspective may be. I spend most of every day with teenagers.

As a father, clinical social worker and lifelong athlete, I have seen a dramatic change in many kids (especially boys) in the last decade. When kids routinely choose video games over climbing trees, solitary computer time over in-person socializing and "virtual sports" over real ones, I fear the balance is off. When children lose the opportunity to be bored, to expand their own imagination and discover the immediate (not virtual) world around them, kids become further out of balance. And when "virtual friends" compete aggressively in the social landscape, our kids lose valuable time to develop in a normative and healthy manner. Family dinners, long the epicenter and touchstone of family life, are being more and more intruded upon by the TV, text messaging and cell phone rings. Most troubling of all, when youth are plugged in, what are they not doing?

As a dad, I try to appreciate the immense cultural pressure on my own children, while preaching balance and the dangers of being plugged in. At home, I have set limits on TV and computer time and have prohibited the purchase of a gaming system. As a clinical social worker, I frequently struggle to restore the vacant emotion and detachment in many teens, and the intense helplessness, neglect or capitulation in their parents. Alienation for teenagers has risen to epidemic proportions, spurred on by electronics and sublimated by them.

Let's remember that most childhood and adolescent activities, historically, were invented and modified by the kids and teens playing them. Videogames and TV programs are largely created by adults. Children needed to be prodded to come inside from fantasy games of army, tag, and slaying of imaginary monsters. All too often, they must now be pushed outside.

Video and computer games are especially concerning. Many glorify and numb youth to violence and aggression, particularly those games with misogynist content. These games desensitize youth to the very real scourge of violence, often marginalizing aggression towards girls and woman. They make sport out of killing, domination and triumph, and imprint many boys with an unhealthy view of relationships and conflict resolution. Whether these games cause more violence, or increase risk in those already impacted by violence, the messages are clearly damaging.

Games that are non-violent can still cause harm when they become the predominant mode of play for a child/adolescent. Game systems and the internet can rob our kids of the need to be bored and the importance of "working at their play." The consequences of their choices are real (falling out of the tree), and solutions/resolutions figured out through play build life skills of resilience, conflict resolution and cooperation. Easy entertainment, when it is the lion share of one's activity, leads to the atrophy of creativity, perseverance and our children's bodies. The only skill that gaming builds is more skill in gaming. The skills learned through play and human interactions are invaluable, and necessary for wholesome and normal development.

For most of our development as humans, our brains have been accustomed to the rhythms of the natural world. The human brain developed over hundreds of thousands of years to be in synch with the natural world, and our ability to learn, relax and relate are still best matched in nature. The brain has a set of pre-determined sensory needs, that, in order to stay healthy, must be satisfied. We all know the feelings associated with being attuned to nature. It is no coincidence that so many people run to the mountains, lakes, rivers and oceans when they have free time. Historical lifestyles and recreation were built for this cadence around fishing holes, skating ponds, ritual dances and songs, and campfires. In spite of all of our advances, humans literally thrive the most when we are attuned to nature.

Without enough repetitive nature-based experiences, we are literally starving our brains. Alternately, when kids are overwhelmed with machine generated sensory (visual, auditory, somatic) experiences, this interrupts normal pathways and disrupts healthy development. Ask any experienced educator, counselor or coach, and you will hear that larger numbers of kids today are struggling to be attentive, creative, self-soothing, well-regulated, cooperative, and capable of negotiating complex social interactions.

My appeal is largely to parents, as any significant change must come from them. Kids won't make this change on their own, nor will the amoral, profiteering companies that target kids as robust revenue robots who feed their principle-less greed. This appeal is for all parents to become mindful of the careful and necessary balance of childhood, a finite time to accomplish necessary developmental tasks. Parents should limit their child's "media diet" and the use of electronics should account for a small part of a kid's sensory experience of their world.

Fortunately, many families understand the importance of children being outside, unstructured and spontaneous, and working their way out of boredom creatively. These families must often fight to balance the realities of the technology age, wrestling daily with popular culture. It has become an odd paradox how much effort many parents must exert to help their kids do what is normal, developmentally necessary and ultimately most healthy.

West Nile Virus

The State of Vermont will again be tracking the spread of West Nile virus through an annual, statewide surveillance program that includes testing dead birds, trapping and testing mosquitoes and testing people who have symptoms consistent with the virus.

West Nile virus is spread by the bite of an infected mosquito. Vermont has had a total of four human cases of West Nile virus detected since it started a comprehensive surveillance program in 2000, including one case in 2002 and three cases in 2003.

"Each year we see a heightened awareness about West Nile virus and people taking precautions, such as getting rid of standing water in rain gutters or old tires where mosquitoes routinely breed," said Patsy Kelso, state epidemiologist for the Vermont Department of Health.

Symptoms of West Nile virus are often mild, but can include high fever and paralysis. Approximately 1 percent of people who are infected develop severe illness affecting the central nervous system, such as encephalitis or meningitis, which can be fatal.

The Department of Health is urging Vermonters to:

Wear long sleeves and pants and avoid outdoor activities at dusk and dawn when mosquitoes are active.

Get rid of standing water where water can pool such as wading pools and any other water-holding containers.

Use repellents containing no more than 30 percent DEET on adults and no more than ten percent on children age three and older.

Install or repair screens on windows and doors to keep mosquitoes out.

During the mosquito season, the public is encouraged to report all dead birds by calling the central dead bird reporting line at the Vermont Department of Health (800) 913-1139, Monday to Friday 8:00 a.m. to 4:30 p.m.

The West Nile virus season peaks in late summer and runs through October. There is a risk of West Nile virus as long as mosquitoes are active.

Monitoring bird deaths helps to prevent human cases of the virus by identifying local areas of increased virus activity. The surveillance plan is coordinated by the Vermont Department of Health and the Vermont Agency of Agriculture Food and Markets. The Agency of Agriculture is responsible for mosquito trapping and testing. They will also be conducting mosquito surveillance for Eastern Equine Encephalitis, another mosquito-borne disease that has never been detected in Vermont, although it has been found in all the surrounding states.

For more information on West Nile virus, visit the Vermont Department of Health website: healthvermont.gov.

Blue-Green Algae Bloom Detected in Missisquoi Bay

Elevated levels of toxins detected in a blue-green algae bloom on the eastern shores of the Missisquoi Bay has prompted the Vermont Department of Health to advise boaters, swimmers and residents to take the following precautions:

Avoid contact with algae-contaminated water.

Do not swim or bathe in the water. Remember that children are considered to be at higher risk because they are more likely to drink the water.

Monitor water intakes for private residences. If you see algae present near the intake, switch to an alternate safe source of water.

Do not use algae contaminated water to prepare meals or brush teeth. Boiling water will not remove toxins.

Do not allow pets in algae-contaminated water.

Algae has also been observed in Shelburne Bay, and traces of the scum were also seen along the shoreline at Red Rocks Park in Burlington.

Exposing skin to some kinds of blue-green algae can result in irritation or allergic reactions, and drinking water containing algae that is producing toxins can cause nausea, vomiting and diarrhea. Anyone who has symptoms is advised to seek medical attention.

Swimming is not the only danger of exposure. People can also inhale or swallow blue-green algae when water skiing or using a jet ski.

No human cases of illness related to blue-green algae have been documented in Vermont since the Health Department and partner agencies including the University of Vermont Rubenstein School of Environment and Natural Resources started a comprehensive surveillance and monitoring system in 1999.

Blooms can be reported by calling the Health Department at (800) 439-8550 (VT only). Homeowner toxin test kits can be purchased from the Health Department Laboratory at (800) 660-9997 (VT only).

The Health Department posts an online status map of algae blooms in Lake Champlain, including facts and photographs. The map is posted at: http://healthvermont.gov/enviro/bg_algae/bgalgae.aspx.

They defeated teams from both Florida and Virginia and lost to eventual champion Maryland Storm by 12 points.

The Lightning team finished the season with an over-all record of 31W-11L. Together they captured four Northeast Regional AAU tournaments and for the second consecutive year, the Vermont AAU State Championship played at UVM in early May.

Team members include Isabella Esposito, Ali Wells, Liz Maglione (Essex), Kari Lavalette, Sofia Lozon, Taylor Goldsborough (Williston), Elana Bayer-Pacht (Hinesburg), Sara Sayles (Bristol), Lydia Stearns (Lincoln) and Caroline Limanek, Lazrin Schenck (Shelburne). Coaches Mike Wells and Jessie Brosseau.

Hinesburg-Charlotte All Star Little League Baseball

A dedicated team of 10/11 year old Charlotte and Hinesburg All Stars advanced to the second round in the District 1 Baseball Tournament along with strong Shelburne and South Burlington teams. The tournament ran from Sunday, July 12 through the Championship Game on Monday, July 27. The Charlotte All Stars dubbed themselves the Chili Peppers and were coached by Mark Colgan, Barry Dugan and Chris Davis. The team began practicing on June 16 immediately after the regular season ended with a full roster of 14 players. These hard working players entered the Tournament Championship with grit and determination against the undefeated South Burlington team.

Highlights of the tourney included an extra inning battle with Shelburne on Friday, July 24 that ended with Charlotte's Wyatt Shea getting a walk-off single and the team winning 6-5 as darkness fell. Charlotte again faced Shelburne on Sunday, July 26 with an overpowering 12-0 victory in four innings to qualify for the District Championship Game. South Burlington fielded a team of skilled players and succeeded in remaining undefeated through both the pool play and the Championship round. South Burlington's strong hitting and fielding skills made them the overwhelming favorite for the Championship game on Monday, July 20.

Charlotte-Hinesburg put three runs on the board in the top of the first-off hits by Wyatt Shea, Ky White-Hanson, Haydon Kjelleren and Casey Spicer-Renaud. South Burlington answered with a two-run homer in the bottom of the first by Ben Finklestein and followed that with three singles to tie the game going into the second inning. Charlotte had excellent pitching performances by Hayden Kjelleren, Ky White-Hanson, and Drew Colgan with solid catching by Aiden Powell and Jordan Ayer. Both teams played strong defensive baseball but in the end, South Burlington's depth and strength prevailed and the game ended 14-4.

That score did not accurately reflect how hard and well-played the game was for those spectating. The Charlotte-Hinesburg All Stars battled right up until the ten run mercy rule ended the game an inning early. After the game, the Charlotte-Hinesburg team received their tournament medals and South Burlington received the Championship banner and medals. In addition, the South Burlington team presented each Charlotte-Hinesburg player with a sportsmanship award for their great attitudes and play throughout the tournament.

South Burlington advanced to the state tourney in Brattleboro July 31. Over 30 days of practices preceded the Championship Tournament and the Charlotte-Hinesburg players continued to show up ready to play and improved with each game. The dedication of the players, coaches and families made the team's success in the tournament a reality. Head Coach Mark Colgan had the following comments following the Championship game: "I truly had one of the most rewarding baseball seasons ever and I think it's attributable to the three coaches always being on the same page and the wonderful kids we had the opportunity to work with. I was honored to spend the time with such great kids and hope the players think back on this season in a positive light and continue developing their love of baseball."

Coach Barry Dugan added: "Words can't describe what my heart and mind felt over the past several weeks as a coach and father involved with CLL and the All-Star experience. So many emotions and good times all in the spirit of having fun, teaching, and working with a great group of kids and parents while preparing for competition. It was so worth the effort we all put in."

Coach Chris Davis added that: "It was an honor and a privilege to be able to be part of this team of All Stars and I would also like to thank the families and the Charlotte-Hinesburg Little League Board of Directors for the support we received."

The Charlotte-Hinesburg players, their coaches and their families enjoyed playing and watching All Star baseball with these players giving 110 percent in every game. They have all earned some summer fun and the chance to perhaps watch some baseball from the stands!

Lake Champlain Waldorf School

A packed audience was treated to Rossini's William Tell Overture during the high school commencement ceremony of the Lake Champlain Waldorf School on Saturday June 13. Twelve students in the class of 2009 performed a cappella and in full, gorgeous harmony during their poignant and emotional farewell to the independent school in Charlotte and Shelburne. Hinesburg resident Ilana Miller, daughter of Rachel Miller and Richard Miller, and St. George residents Sara Faust, daughter of Steve Faust and Mary Alice Favro, Abigail Sirch, daughter of Dianne Ludwig and Stephen Sirch, and Ayla Yandow, daughter of Tim Yandow and Jane Rowe, were members of the graduating class. Founded in 1984 upon the philosophy of Rudolph Steiner, the Lake Champlain Waldorf School taught them to be creative, free and sensitive individuals.

Andrew Homan, one of the school's humanities faculty members (who taught at Columbia University before moving to Vermont) described each student to the gathered parents, friends and teachers before presenting the diplomas, each a beautiful water color. He spoke not about their accomplishments but about a unique quality that each individual brought to the class and to the whole Lake Champlain Waldorf School community.

For the graduation ceremony, the school drew upon the rich festivals and celebrations that mark each student's career. On the first day of each school year, every first grade student walks through a flowered arbor, and is presented a rose by a high school senior who welcomes them into the school community. As a lovely closing to their Waldorf education, each graduating senior received a rose to mark the completion and flowering of their education, along with their diploma that was created by an alumnus of the school.

Graduate Ayla Yandow, in her address to the class, reflected on the significant and rare gifts she has received through her education: individuality within the unity:

"What it all boils down to for me are the people and our relationships. The relationships that the students have with their teachers at the Lake Champlain Waldorf School are like no other. The most important thing that we are taught here is to be unique, to find who we really are, what makes me, me and you, you. We are led to our passions and encouraged to follow them. We are not half-baked students who are pushed out of the same shoot, entering futures that have already been laid out in front of us. We are fully baked young adults, ready to follow our passions and dreams and explore all of our talents, of which we have many. I enjoy every single day with my class. I always learn something new because we are free to be who we are, and we are encouraged to go in the direction in which our hearts tell us to go. Of course, we have nudges in certain directions, but really, it's up to us to decide who we want to become."

Resident Explores Links between Origami and Mathematics

Brittany Baker, a junior mathematics major at Saint Michael's College, was selected competitively to participate this summer in a National Science Foundation-funded REU program on "The Mathematics of Paper Folding" held June 8 to July 24 at the University of Georgia in Athens, Ga. The program, linked to the university's respected graduate program in mathematics, is designed to provide research experience for undergraduates, in order to encourage them to continue on to graduate programs.

Ms. Baker, the daughter of Russell and Robin Baker of Hinesburg, graduated from Mt. Abraham Union High School before coming to Saint Michael's.

According to the program description, "Origami, the art of paper folding, has deep geometric roots. However, the mathematical theory behind origami has really only been developed with the past 20 years. This Research Experience for Undergraduates focuses on learning, applying and extending that theory."

A story in the University of Georgia online magazine quoted the Vermonter: "I'm just amazed at how much depth there is to origami. I didn't realize there was so much deeper math in it," said Brittany. The story titled, "Math professor brings students into the fold with origami" is at this website where a fast-time video also shows the process of doing origami. http://www.onlineathens.com/stories/072609/uga_470969696.shtml

"Students get a real sense of what it's like to do mathematics research at these summer programs," said Dr. George Ashline, professor of mathematics at Saint Michael's, and Ms. Baker adviser.

Her summer program explored many aspects of origami and the mathematics behind it, while using theory to design new models and to investigate open questions in the theory. They explored both classical origami, which focuses on making models of animals, people and inanimate objects, and modular origami, which focuses on creating geometric objects, often using linked simple units and different colors to display the underlying geometry.

Chris and his wife, Ann, live in Shelburne and have two adult children.

The VTA was established by the legislature in 2007 as part of Governor Douglas’s proposal to make Vermont the nation’s first e-state. Its mission is to build infrastructure enabling affordable broadband and cellular service everywhere in the State. VTA is authorized to issue up to $40 million in revenue bonds to finance the infrastructure required.

Hinesburg Student Represents Vermont in Washington, D.C.

Allison Giroux, a Champlain Valley Union High School student from Hinesburg, began her summer vacation with a mission. Having been selected to represent the State of Vermont at the Juvenile Diabetes Children’s Congress in Washington D.C., she was heading south to make a statement to elected officials. It is vitally important for Congress to continue to support research funding to find a cure for Type 1 Diabetes. Allison and fellow delegates from all 50 states and six foreign countries, all of whom have Type 1 Diabetes, were there to deliver the message personally to their individual Senators and Representatives. Many meetings were held and personalized scrapbooks depicting each diabetic’s constant struggles with the disease were left with congressional members.

In a senate hearing led by Senators Susan Collins and Joe Lieberman, two panels of witnesses shared their relationships to diabetes. The first panel, including Mary Tyler Moore, International Chair of the Juvenile Diabetes Research Foundation, boxer Sugar Ray Leonard, Nick Jonas of the musical group Jonas Brothers, and Dr. Griffin Rogers of the National Institute for Diabetes, Digestive and Kidney Diseases, impressed upon the members the need for their support in the continuing fight for a cure. The second panel, comprised of several diabetic delegates and the mother of four children with the disease, revealed their personal plights and daily struggles of living with the disease.

Type 1 Diabetes is a disease in which the body destroys its own pancreatic beta cells which are the only cells in the body producing insulin. It is a disease that affects mostly children and young adults. In order to be healthy, persons with Type 1 have to continuously be aware of what their body is telling them. Although it is not a cure, manufactured insulin, delivered by shots or through an insulin pump, keeps blood glucose under control. Every carbohydrate that is eaten has to be counted and blood sugar levels have to be checked five to ten times daily, night and day.

It is a constant, tedious disease that is emotionally and physically stressful. Even individuals with good control cannot predict when they will have a high or low blood sugar. Life events often have to stop in order to deal with the effects of this disease.

Diabetes is the single most costly chronic disease that affects some 24 million Americans. The health care costs for diabetics are astronomical and the long term physical effects are devastating. A cure cannot come too soon.

Allison was diagnosed five and a half years ago but tries to live the life of a normal teenager as much as is possible. She dreams of the day when a cure will be found and until that time comes, she will do everything she can to help that dream become a reality.
