Tree-riffic News!

Hinesburg has been awarded a $30,000 grant to plant trees on the future Town Common.

On May 4, Andrea Morgante, Marie Ambusk of TreesRoi, and Nick Keirstead of Full Branch Tree Care gave workshops on proper tree planting and pruning techniques to residents interested in helping with the planting and maintenance of the trees.

Hinesburg Bus Service Likely to Transition to Tri-Valley Transit

Schedule and Service Would Not Change

BY CATHY RYAN

Hinesburg's bus service is currently jointly run by Green Mountain Transit (GMT) and Tri-Valley Transit (TVT), which operates service in Addison, Orange and Northern Windsor counties. Currently, GMT runs one morning route and one evening route (Burlington to Hinesburg and back to Burlington) and TVT runs one morning route and one evening route (Middlebury, through Hinesburg, to Burlington and back through Hinesburg to Middlebury). Hinesburg currently pays $52,000 to GMT annually, and some of that gets passed through to TVT. These local match funds draw down the

Despite the advantages of mobile home parks to meet the demand for affordable housing, few new ones have opened in the last 50 years, and the pace has slowed even further in the last 25. Though some parks have recently added a few lots, other parks have closed. In some cases, including Hinesburg, zoning limitations on housing density prevent all but the smallest new parks from being built. Many older parks, having been built before most zoning and permitting laws were in effect, are located in areas that are prone to flooding articles the causes of and solutions or present problems for water and for Vermont and Hinesburg's crisis septic systems. Now, finding tracts of land suitable to meet current standards are hard to find and/or

> The affordability of existing mobile home parks is also under threat. In many states, the combination of home ownership and leased land has made mobile home parks attractive to speculators. Investors are able to purchase parks and steeply raise rents. Mobile home owners are among the most reliable of tenants because they are invested in their homes, but, ironically, they are among the least mobile. Moving homes is expensive, sometimes impossible, and vacant lots to move to are scarce. Thus, mobile home owners feel obliged to stay and pay exorbitant rent on their lots.

expensive to develop. Competing demands for land that offer landowners greater return on their investment are high. Some neighborhoods are resistant to locating new parks nearby.

Vermont has largely avoided this wave of speculation. With an average of only 15 lots, "our parks are too small to attract attention," explains Arthur Hamlin, Housing Program Coordinator for Mobile Home Parks at the State of Vermont Agency of Commerce and Community Development. Furthermore, when a park goes on the market, state law gives residents a 45-day right of first refusal. In such circumstances residents have found creative ways to ensure their parks will be managed in their own interests. Mountain View is owned and managed by the Vermont State Housing Authority. Sunset Lake is owned cooperatively by the residents themselves. Other parks around the state have come under nonprofit ownership. Nonetheless, rents are rising across the state, this year by about six percent. An average lot now goes for $463 per month in Chittenden County.

State and local government are looking for ways to increase the role mobile homes and parks will play in solving our housing problems. No new parks are slated for Hinesburg, but there are ways we can help locally.

- The Town can assist mobile home owners, and park residents, apply to the state housing authority's Manufactured Home Improvement and Repair program (MHIR). The program also awards grants to park owners to add lots or repair infrastructure. Champlain Housing Trust also has a Shared Equity Program to assist new home buyers with the downpayment.
- The Town should consider providing an exemption for mobile home parks to zoning regulations that limit density. In exchange for greater density, or additional lots, it can make parks more livable by requiring more public spaces, something lacking in most existing parks.
- We can all embrace mobile homes and welcome any potential new or expanded mobile home parks. Prefabricated mobile homes offer the right size and price to meet our state and town's most pressing needs for new housing.

Free Community Toy Swap Saturday, June 1

BY ALEXANDRA KONCEWICZ. COORDINATOR, HINESBURG FRIENDS OF FAMILIES

The Hinesburg Community Resource Center's Friends of Families program will host its first community Toy Swap in the Hinesburg Community School's lower parking lot on Saturday, June 1, from 9-10 a.m.

Bring any toys in good condition that you'd like to pass on to another family. Similar to a "trunk or treat," you can display the toys in your trunk or on a small table. Participants can then browse each other's donations and take what they would like. Like our clothing swaps there is no need to bring a donation in order to "shop" and you're not obligated to "shop" vourself.

This is a carry in, carry out event. Any toys that are not swapped must be taken away by the original owner at the end of the event.

This event is free and no registration is required, but please email Alex with any questions at koncewicz@hinesburgresource.org.

Geprags Park is for the Birds

Event Saturday, June 1

BY THE HINESBURG CONSERVATION COMMISSION

Geprags Park is great for birdwatching. An event will be held this Saturday, June 1.

Geprags Park and its forests, fields and shrublands are the perfect habitat for a wide diversity of birds. Over the past 10 years Audubon Vermont, the Hinesburg Conservation Commission, USFWS Partners Program and VTFWD Habitat Stamp Program have worked to enhance bird habitat by removing invasive species and managing the shrublands for the birds that rely on them. Join Mark LaBarr, Audubon Vermont Conservation Biologist. as he discusses the habitat work at the park and demonstrates bird banding techniques and new technologies which help us better understand birds and protect the habitats they need.

Saturday, June 1, at Gerprags Community Park, Hinesburg, from 8-10 a.m. Please dress for the weather and be prepared to walk in woods and fields.

For more information, please reach out to the Hinesburg Conservation Commission at hinesburgec@ gmail.com.

Selectboard Highlights

BY MERRILY LOVELL, SELECTBOARD CHAIRPERSON

April 17

In the Selectboard Forum, Merrily Lovell, selectboard chair, reported that progress is being made in the planning of the May 8 celebration for the re-opening of the Great Hall at the Town Hall. This event will happen from 5-7 p.m., in conjunction with the Planning Commission workshop from 7-9 p.m. Rik Palieri and his group will provide music; Las Hermosas will be there to provide food; and there will be a speaker. More details will be coming soon.

The selectboard approved the new Waste Water Treatment Facility construction bid of $12.592.222 put forth by Naylor and Breen Builders. Jason Booth, president of Aldrich and Elliott, was present at the meeting and said construction could start the next day. It will soon be evident that work is being done at the Town Waste Water site.

A one-year bond note with Union Bank was approved by the selectboard to ensure funds will be available for payments for the construction.

Sarah Reeves, Executive Director of Chittenden County Solid Waste District, presented the budget for the new fiscal year. After a detailed presentation containing much valuable information, the selectboard approved the budget. For those interested, the CWSD presentation can be found on the Town website under Selectboard, April 17 agenda, meeting documents, or by watching the Media Factory video of our meeting.

The selectboard was pleased that Ric McGraw was willing to continue for another two-year term as our CWSD commissioner and appointed him to that post.

Clayton Clark, general manager of Green Mountain Transit, led the selectboard in a very informative discussion on the town's costs and the future of GMT buses to Hinesburg. There were many factors involved and many possibilities for the future. The selectboard decided to have Todd Odit, Town Manager; Clayton Clark; Phil Pouech, our State Representative and a member of the legislative transportation committee; and Jim Moulton, Executive Director of Tri Valley Transit; look into this matter further and report back to the selectboard about the best steps to take moving forward.

The selectboard decided to move forward with enforcing a zoning

Decker and John Mazzuchi to the Planning Commission.

Carl Bohlen, chair of the Affordable Housing Committee, requested that the selectboard reconsider their decision to fund the Green Mountain Habitat for Humanity's project on Mechanicsville Road with $15,000 from ARPA funds and $15,000 from the Revolving Loan Fund. He explained that the Affordable Housing Committee was counting on using the Revolving Loan funds for other projects and requested that the selectboard change their decision and take all $30,000 for the Mechanicsville Road project from available ARPA fund. By a vote of 4 to 1, the selectboard agreed to this change.

Commuter bus service update: The selectboard heard a report from our Town Manager, Todd, that things were progressing smoothly in the transition of our commuter bus from Green Mountain Transit to Tri Valley Transit. Phil Pouech, our GMT representative, confirmed that GMT, because of cost issues, will likely have to confine their bus service to the more developed, metropolitan areas where their buses con- as our part-time Fire Chief, at 24 Valley Transit, on the other hand, is set up to serve rural areas. All the parties involved agree that the transition from GMT to TVT makes sense for Hinesburg. This transition will provide the same number of bus rides that we currently have. More decisions need to be made before this transition is final. The selectboard will keep Hinesburg residents informed

Local option tax: The selectboard has been interested for several months in the possibility of having a local option tax, as many of our neighboring towns do. Just before adjournment, the Vermont Legislature approved legislation that enables all towns to adopt a local option tax with only a town wide vote. Previously, a Town Charter had been needed. As Hinesburg does not have a Town Charter, a committee had been working on developing one. Now, as soon as Governor Scott approves the new legislation, the selectboard is interested in having a town vote in November to approve the tax. Such a tax could bring in a revenue of $175,000 or more annually. The selectboard will need to have further discussions on how this revenue would be used.

NBRC grant for well #6: The select board approved withdrawing from the Northern Borders Regional Commission grant for well #6. The NBRC has required the Town to go through an increasingly complicated, lengthy process that involved hiring consultants and time and energy to fill out involved forms. with no guarantee that the grant will be provided when all was completed. The selectboard agreed that it was not worth the time and money needed to fulfill this lengthy process, especially when the end result was not assured.

Full-time Fire Chief: Our current Fire Chief, Nick Baker, has served sistently carry more passengers. Tri hours per week, for three years. He is stepping back from this position, although he will stay on as a volunteer fire fighter. He strongly recommended the new Fire Chief be full-time, at 40 hours per week, as has been discussed for many years. Our Town Manager, Todd, explained that, with moving around money planned for the unfilled Public Works Director position, we could fund a full-time chief for only $12,285 more than is in the current budget. The selectboard approved this plan.

LEGISLATIVE

Wildlife Management Bill Dead in the Water

Part of the bill aimed to ban hunters from using dogs and bait without a trapper's license - to hunt covotes in the state.

BY BROOKE BURNS, COMMUNITY NEWS SERVICE

The past few months, legislators were eyeing a bill to limit coyote hunting and defang the hunter-dominated board that sets rules on the sport in Vermont. The bill died in the House at the end of the legislative session, and the contentious practice of coyote hunting lives on.

Sen. Chris Bray, D-Addison, introduced S.258 Jan. 12. Part of the bill aimed to ban hunters from using dogs and bait - without a trapper's license – to hunt coyotes in Hound hunting is not a new issue in the state. In 2022, the legislature stopped short of an outright ban on hunting covotes with dogs: instead they passed Act 165, which ordered the Vermont Fish and Wildlife board to research and implement new regulations on coyote hunting. The law temporarily banned coyote hunting until the new rules came into play.

The board set the regulations in January, one of which required hunters to apply for and receive a permit if they want to pursue coyotes with dogs. Four nonprofit wildlife advocacy groups, Protect Our Wildlife, the Vermont Wildlife Coalition, the Center for a Humane Economy, and Animal Wellness Action, sued the state in response. They called the new rules inadequate and motioned for the ban on hunting coyotes with dogs to continue. A Washington County Superior court judge denied the motion in February.

Sarah Gorsline, a representative for Project Coyote, a national nonprofit that lobbies to protect coyotes and other predators, spoke to lawmakers at a House Committee on Environment and Energy meeting April 19.

"At Project Coyote, scientific studies show us that coyote hound hunting serves no legitimate purpose in modern conservation of wildlife, and it creates the conditions for conflict between packs of hunting hounds, livestock, pets, and other Vermonters who share the landscape in increasing numbers." she said.

Gorsline also pointed out in a letter to legislators that even the state's informational resources echo the pointlessness of hunting coyotes for population control, due to their reproductive habits.

"As Vermont Fish and Wildlife's Eastern covote info sheet, available on their website, states, 'Coyotes can increase their reproductive rates in response to hunting, so populations rebound quickly from efforts to control their numbers directly by hunting or trapping," the letter says.

Not only can coyotes rebound, Gorsline said, but the dogs that hunt them can attack other animals, or get injured or killed by

"There is no reason why hounds should be put in the position of being mauled by a wild animal," she said.

Chris Bradley, the president of the Vermont Federation of Sportsman Club, testified the same day. Bradley served as a consultant for the board when they were setting the new regulations. He called the researching and drafting of rules set after the passage of Act 165 intense – and that they complied with the wishes of the legislature.

"I had the privilege of serving on both working groups, as did Chair Sheldon," Bradley said in the April 19 meeting. "Other than not accepting outright bans, concessions were made and everyone knew going in that no one would get all that they wanted."

Bradley also said people who actively participate in hunting and trapping should be the ones deciding the rules around those activities. The legislature used to place game species management "into the hands of people who are knowledgeable to provide the best management possible," he said.

In an effort to divert these solar glasses from the landfill, CSWD partnered with Astronomers Without Borders to establish collection sites for solar eclipse glasses to be reused. We worked with towns, businesses, event organizers, and libraries to collect these glasses, and had collection bins at each of our Drop-Off Centers.

BUSINESS

Financial Focus: New Choices for Business Owners

BY EDWARD JONES

f you own a business and you offer a 401(k) or similar retirement plan to your employees, you'll want to stay current on the various changes affecting these types of accounts. And in 2024, you may find some interesting new developments to consider.

These changes are part of the SECURE 2.0 Act, enacted at the end of 2022. And while some parts of the law went into effect in 2023 - such as the new tax credit for employer contributions to start-up retirement plans with 100 or fewer employees - others were only enacted this year.

Here are some of these changes that may interest you:

• New "starter" 401(k)/403(b) If you haven't already established a retirement plan, you can now offer a "starter" 401(k) or "safe harbor" 403(b) plan to employees who meet age and service requirements. These plans have lower contribution limits ($6,000 per year, or $7,000 for those 50 or older) than a typical 401(k) or 403(b) and employers can't make matching or nonelective contributions. These plans are low-cost and easy to administer but the credit for employer contributions doesn't apply, as these contributions aren't allowed, and since start-up costs are low, the tax credit for these costs will be correspondingly lower than they'd be for a full-scale 401(k) plan.

 Matches for student loan payments It's not easy for young employees to save for retirement and pay back student loans. To help address this problem, Congress included a provision in Secure 2.0 that allows employers the option to provide matching contributions to employees' retirement plans (401(k), 403(b), 457(b) and SIMPLE IRAs) when these employees make qualified student loan payments. Of course, if you offer this match for student loan payments, your costs will likely increase, although these matching contributions are tax deductible. In any case, you may want to balance any additional expense with the potential benefit of attracting and retaining employees, particularly those who have recently graduated from college.

• 401(k) eligibility for part-time employees Part-time employees who are at least 21 years old and have at least 500 hours of service in three consecutive years must now be eligible to contribute to an existing 401(k) plan. The inclusion of part-time employees could lead to higher business expenses for you, depending on the amount of contributions you may make to employees' plans. Again, though, you'd be offering a benefit that could be attractive to quality part-time employees.

Emergency savings account Many people, especially those who don't earn high incomes, have trouble building up emergency funds they can tap for unexpected costs, such as a major home or car repair or large medical expenses. Now, if you offer a 401(k), 403(b) or 457(b) plan, you can include a pension-linked emergency savings account (PLESA) that allows non-highly compensated employees to save up to $2,500, a figure that will be indexed for inflation in the future. PLESA allows for tax-free monthly withdrawals without incurring a 10 percent tax penalty. PLESA contributions are made on an after-tax (Roth) basis and must be matched at the same rate as other employee contributions.

You may want to consult with your tax and financial professionals to determine how these changes may affect what you want to do with your retirement plan. The more you know, the better your decisions

Library News

June is a month full of transitions – school days end, spring melts into summer, new flowers bloom, and new crops ripen. We hope that the library can be a place of calm and routine during this busy time of year. As always, our Summer Reading program begins and new books pop up on our shelves. We hope you will stop by.

For gardening fans, June is also the month that tickets to this year's Hinesburg Garden Tour go on sale. Tickets may be purchased after June 15 at both Carpenter-Carse Library and Red Wagon Plants. Tickets are $20 each and only a limited amount will be available. The tour is planned for Sunday, July 14, from 10 a.m. to 3 p.m. For more information, call 482-806 or 363-6471.

Books to look for in June: Farewell, Amethystine by Walter Mosley, The Glassmaker by Tracy Chevalier, The Midnight Feast by Lucy Foley, Same As It Ever Was by Claire Lombardo, Shelterwood by Lisa Wingate, A Talent for Murder by Peter Swanson and many more.

Storytime is designed for babies, toddlers, and preschool/ kindergarten aged children and their caregivers, and no registration is required.

2024 Summer Reading Club at Carpenter-Carse Library

Every summer public libraries across the state offer programming that is designed to encourage a love of reading and introduce youth of all ages to books and authors, expand leisure reading choices, and help prevent the "summer slide" and loss of reading skills during the summer months when youth are out of school. Beginning the week of June 10, students of all ages can pick up a free summer reading log (sticker chart) and begin tracking the hours they spend reading or listening to books throughout the summer. Completed summer reading logs can be returned to the circulation desk before school starts to receive their prize. We also offer six weeks of free, fun, and engaging events happening from June 19-July 31. Registration is required, and you can read full descriptions of the events and sign up online through our website carpentercarse.org. Club events are designed for kids in preschool-grade 4 and some events are "drop-off" for kids ages 5 and up continued on page 9

French Farm Elegy

BY BILL AND KATE SCHUBART

re've lived some 30 years in our house off Drinkwater Road in Hinesburg. The land had been part of Howard and Inez French's farm just down the road.

For the first few years, Howard and Inez grazed their cows in a pasture just below our kitchen. Once, when I was struggling to get my aging John Deere tractor up our steep driveway in winter to plow, Howard took me out to his tractor shed and said, "try these," pointing to a 200 lb. set of rusty Canadian ring chains. We got them in the bucket of my tractor and I brought them home. They made all the difference.

After Howard died in 2006, Inez sold off much of the farm and used the proceeds to restore Howard's beloved barn, a classic Vermont barn with a spacious hayloft and rail hayfork over the ground-floor stanchion area with a milking shed at one end. She also built herself a small garage so she would not have to shovel out her car after every snowstorm knock on our door unannounced and ask if we had any coffee up. We'd have a wide-ranging chat about town events, family and community changes. Occasionally, we'd repeat the gift and drop by her spacious white farmhouse just down from our driveway, Magic Hill Road, which Kate had suggested be named French Farm Road when the GPS road-naming frenzy broke. But our good neighbor's dog, Magic, won out.

On walks, Inez would occasionally

After Inez died, the farm was sold this year and site preparation for a new home up the hill overlooking the farm began

Grateful to see Howard's barn still standing, we hoped for the best. But a few weeks later we saw the same excavator clawing apart Harold's much-loved barn, and days later a smoldering fire sent the timbers and wood into the neighborhood sky.

caught site of gorgeous blossoms in the boughs from the driver's seat. This finally prompted me to pull into the Town Hall parking lot for a closer look. No doubt there's a cell phone app available to identify plants on the spot. Lacking that, I took digital photos of the leaves plus flowers and compared them at home to photos found in the pages of The Tree Identification Book by George W.D. Symonds (1958). I've lived in Hinesburg long enough to know and remember the Miner House that occupied that northwest corner location. Prior to its demise the house was surveyed as Site #37 in the Hinesburg Lower Village Historic District. From that we learn the house had been built in 1840 on a stone foundation, it was two and a half stories, and had a gabled roof. Miner family mem-

You Say Catalpa, I Say Catawba

BY ROGER DONEGAN

Catalpa tree blossoms at Town Hall, June 27, 2023.

s many times I have passed

Town Hall to turn onto the Charlotte Road over the years I often wondered what kind of trees lined the sidewalk and loom over the amphitheater-like space containing the crescent shaped stone wall below. The six trees are fixtures now, doing better than just surviving. Thing is I have never heard anyone speak of nor have I read what kind of trees bers who grew up in the house are still about.

Bury Time Capsule at Town Hall by Julia Melloni, BFP, Monday, Nov. 7, 2005.) The article reported the time capsule contained letters from everyone who contributed a rock to build the wall. The capsule, buried in the dark by candlelight at the craft beers by the Catawba Brewing users and giving birth. This begins conclusion of the event, also contains stories from primary grade students, pictures and letters from the community, and last but not least, an issue of The Hinesburg

The ornamental trees I speak of were not yet in the picture in 2005, but landscaping followed soon enough. The trees certainly stand out. The lone pine tree in the center of the Vermont state coat of arms-style flag represents Vermont's forests. Certainly, in step with the wisdom in the adage "one can't see the forest for the trees" could apply here to those walking by Town Hall. Long before positively identifying the trees, the many times I've driven around that corner off-season, leaves gone, I'd catch site of long string bean-like pods dangling up high, where pinecones might be, and think of the classic children's tale Jack and the Bean Stalk.

The Tree Identification Book left little doubt: my digital camera photos matched the leaf, flower, and bean pod (fruit) of a Catalpa tree. In an online search on Catalpa trees, Wikipedia opens with "the Catalpa trees are also commonly called Catawba trees." I had occasion to try pronouncing Catawba out loud, might as well had been Catalpa for that matter, when ordering a meal in downtown Ashville, North Carolina, in September 2022. Touted as serving up regional recipes, the restaurant provided hush puppies for appetizers, vinegary pulled pork entrees with Company. Even the brewing company's logo pleases the eye, inspired by the mountains of western North Carolina and the Catawba River.

These deciduous trees have big heart-shaped leaves. The flowers are very large, white, and trumpet shaped. The fruit or seed pod can be as long as 14 inches. The common eastern Catalpa has broader, spreading branches. The western Catalpa reaches higher with narrower growing branches. Comparing one to the other, the western Catalpa is a late bloomer. So much so, the blossoms of the trees lining the northwest corner of Route 116 and Charlotte Road seem to be in season with the Town of Hinesburg's birthday of June 24.

Substance Use: A Changed Perspective

BY ANNE C. SULLIVAN

Part 1 of 2

This is the first half of a commentary by Hinesburg resident Anne C. Sullivan. The second half will be published in the next issue of The Record. June 27.

used to be biased against people with a substance disorder. But my recent experience as a Guardian ad Litem caused me to change my mind.

Since the 1980s, when a close friend was mugged at her doorstep in NYC, I'd felt that people with substance use disorders must be lazy because they weren't trying hard enough to overcome their addiction. And they must be stupid because, not wanting to work real jobs, they turned into drug dealers who mug you and rob you. How else could I explain why my friend, a childhood polio victim who walked with metal leg braces, could be treated so cruelly? It was a bitter irony that, professionally, my friend was a social worker who worked at a drug rehabilitation

In 2021, after moving to Vermont from Massachusetts, I volunteered and trained to be a GAL. My first assignment was a two-month-old baby boy. I was required to visit him monthly, attend court hearings, and report to the court concerning "the best interests of the child." The baby's mother was young, and since she'd been a teen she'd used illegal drugs and experienced chronic mental health problems. Hospital medical staff are mandated reporters, required to file a report to the VT Department of Children and Families, DCF, about patients who are illegal drug a lengthy legal court process, in order to ensure the baby's safety.

Because the mother had used opioids during pregnancy, the baby had to receive methadone after birth to avoid withdrawal symptoms. At hospital discharge, the foster parents took the baby home with them, although the family court judge allowed daily visits for the mother to breastfeed. Then, a few months later, the mother and her boyfriend, the baby's father, were arrested for drug dealing. A search of their apartment found drugs, a weapon, and a lot of cash. The mother later overdosed and was hospitalized for many weeks for her mental health needs.

At this time, I didn't think that the DCF plan to reunite the baby with his mother would work. There was little evidence that she wanted to live without drugs or that she had much attachment to her baby. I didn't know how she felt about being separated from her child or if she even cared.

I visited the baby monthly, as required by the court, at the foster parents' home and at a DCF office. shared my observations about his development with the baby's lawyer and his Family Services Worker from DCF. My hour-long visits at the DCF playroom (where the mother was supervised by a DCF worker) weren't promising. During my first visit, the mother questioned my presence and asked me to leave. After I explained why I was there she changed her mind. On other visits, she was quiet and often seemed tired. She'd sit on the floor with her infant son, her cell phone in her hand. I didn't see her change a diaper, feed him or begin to play or talk with him.

These visits reminded me of my professional Early Intervention work in Massachusetts. E.I. is a state-funded program for children ages birth-3 who qualify for treatment. In MA I visited a residential treatment center for mothers, in recovery from illegal substance

After discussion among the Hinesburg selectboard, Town Manager Todd Odit, GMT's General Manager Clayton Clark, and TVT's Executive Director Jim Moulton, it seems very likely that all of the runs will be done by TVT starting Sept. 1.

The transition was discussed at the May 15 selectboard meeting. Odit said, "It seems like it's in every party's interest for the entire route to transition to being operated by Tri-Valley Transit." Tri-Valley Transit would be willing to take over operation of the service Sept. 1 of this year. Their board must still approve this new service at their June 4 meeting, which, according to Moulton, is an action that is like-

Tri-Valley Transit doesn't have assessment authority the way that GMT does. They would provide a bill to us, but Odit says there would be room for negotiation. There will be no planned changes to the service or schedule for riders of the current GMT service. The schedule can be seen at ridegmt.com/46-116-commuter.

Tri-Valley Transit runs smaller buses than GMT, "which is probably more of a 'right size' for the ridership," noted Odit. Under TVT, the second run of the morning and afternoon routes will also extend to Middlebury, increasing access for Addison County residents.

Odit explained to the selectboard that if Hinesburg didn't make this change, there'd be the possibility that GMT would cut or reduce the Hinesburg route, even if we remained a member of GMT, paying the assessment. Odit has expressed to TVT that the Hinesburg selectboard would like to see some savings - the same routes at a lower cost. The benefit with TVT is that the Town can negotiate with TVT on this, whereas with GMT, there is no negotiation on their TVT is currently not charging fares (and GMT also is not charging a fare for the Hinesburg route), and TVT has no plan to begin charging a fare.

Phil Pouech, Hinesburg's State Representative and a board member for GMT, said at the May 15 selectboard meeting, "Overall, this is looking really good." He said it will probably help GMT financially to get away from some of the rural routes like this one, and he expects the cost to the Town to go down, so it's a "win-win" for everyone.

In a letter to the selectboard, TVT's Executive Director Jim Moulton wrote, "We are excited about this prospect and look forward to deepening TVT's relationship with Hinesburg and the other 116 corridor towns." See related GMT artifate lies in the hands of the environmental division of the Vermont Superior Court, which hears Act 250 appeals.

According to the commission, the development was denied due to flooding concerns voiced by the Agency of Natural Resources: The agency argues the project will shift and restrict the flow of floodwaters, cause further erosion and endanger future homeowners, according to the appeal.

"There are wetlands, but the bigger issue with the Hinesburg Center 2 project is flooding," said Andrea Morgante, board president and founder of the Lewis Creek Association, a conservation nonprofit. Morgante, representing the nonprofit, was granted party status to the case, or the ability to participate in Act 250 proceedings.

The denial does not come lightly. Town officials expected the project to yield an influx of residents, affordable housing and new businesses. The development was set to be built on 46 acres west of Kinney Drugs and north of Farmall Drive, and it would include 22 lots, 73 new homes and 14,500 square feet of non-residential space, according to the town.

Kinney Drugs, Parkside Cafe and residential structures were approved and built in the first phase of the project.

Grabowski said the potential for flooding is slim to none and argued Act 250 keeps Vermont locked in a dire housing crisis.

been able to find for herself. Clearly "Through our analysis, the project's design today will raise the water by two and a half inches," he said in an interview. In response to the commission's concern about flooding, Grabowski said: "The level of all the infrastructure and homes that are proposed are over five feet above that (raised waterline), so in our opinion, there really is no flooding concern.'

Grabowski said the findings don't account for sites on a case-by-case basis. "The Agency of Natural Resources is essentially applying the same analysis regardless of the specific conditions of the site," he said.

Morgante argues there is cause for concern. Both the LaPlatte River and the Patrick Brook, which enters the LaPlatte on the development property, have floodplains that spill into the location, she said, and regulations "are not adequate" to address events like heavy rain and flooding from high-volume storms.

But she also acknowledged the conundrum Hinesburg faces.

"Part of the problem in Hinesburg is that essentially all of its valley has little hills around it and a lot of small streams around it," she said. "We have been filling in wetland incrementally for essentially the last truck, local tractors, buses, and emergency vehicles. Seeing these vehicles up close teaches children the importance of the diverse equipment used to keep our community running and gives them a chance to meet the operators and learn about their exciting careers.

"The first year we had the groomer, it was rusty and one of the parents convinced me to bring it out. Once we had it refurbished, we were excited to show it off the next year. Now we're regulars at Big Truck Day where you get to see vehicles that are different. Kids see the groomer out on the trails at night and are excited to get to see it up close here," says Scott of Beaver Groomers – a popular attraction at the event.

Pat with Casella Waste Systems is another regular. The kids enjoy learning about recycling and waste management on the Casella Resource Rover.

Families of the nonprofit, parent-cooperative, preschool volunteer to host the event with an outpouring of community support from local sponsors, vehicle donors, and volunteers, like Andrea, who can always be found at the planting station. Plants were donated by Chris Devino, Aubuchon manager; and Red Wagon Plants.

This year, the kids also enjoyed building planters, boats, and cars, thanks to wood kits supplied by The Home Depot in Williston. The Big Blue Trunk provides rides and games, and each year there is a craft section for the little ones to engage all their senses in creating vehicle-themed arts.

Lantman's Market donates fresh and wholesome food every year enabling families to enjoy an affordable meal after working up an appetite climbing on the trucks. To satisfy their sweet tooth, kids can find Hinesburg Nursery School's amazing teachers, Wendy Frink and Becky Cook, in the by-donation bake-sale tent; where Wendy's scrumptious cupcakes bring whimsical themes to life.

With approximately 850 community members in attendance, the event raised more than $7,000 for the school. "Days like today really hit home and make me thankful to have chosen Hinesburg Nursery School and the parent co-op model. I love seeing us all come together for the community, our school, our kids and the future of Hinesburg Nursery School," said Leah, Fundraising Chair for the school.

CVU Scholars' Bowl Team Competes in National Championship

FROM CVSD PRESS RELEASE

ith its championship win at the 2023-24 Vermont-NEA Scholars' Bowl Chittenden Regional, the Scholars' Bowl team from Champlain Valley Union High School proved themselves worthy to play on a national stage. On Friday, May 24, the team represented their school in a 320-team national competition: National Academic Quiz Tournaments' High School National Championship Tournament.

The CVU Team won 6 matchups and lost 5, finishing tied for 97th out of 320 teams.

Quiz bowl is a competitive, academic, interscholastic activity for teams of four students. It is the national version of the game that is often locally called Scholars' Bowl. Quiz bowl teams use buzzers to answer questions about science, math, history, literature, mythology, geography, social science, current events, sports, and popular culture. The matches feature a blend of individual competition and team collabo-areas. Participation in quiz bowl both reinforces lessons from the classroom and encourages players to develop new intellectual interests. Champlain Valley has attended the High School National Championship Tournament four ration, since no individual player is likely to be an expert in all subject ed the High School National Championship Tournament four times before. Most recently, in 2022, they made the playoffs and finished in 82nd place.

The team was captained by Elias Leventhal, who was joined by Frank Fidler, Jacob Graham, and Colin Ravlin. The team is coached by John Bennett, assisted by Kiran MacCormick.

the FY25 school year. His appointment will be effective July 1, 2024.

Bunting, a Champlain Valley Union High School (CVU) graduate, is the current principal of CVU and has served in this role since 2015. During this time, he has led collaborative teams to envision, design, and implement personalized, proficiency-based learning for CVU's 1,300 students. He was distinguished as the Vermont Principal of the Year in 2018. He received a bachelor's degree from Connecticu College where he majored in English and a Master of Education degree in School Leadership from Harvard University.

"Adam has consistently demonstrated his passion for student-centered education and CVSD. His collaborative approach and deep understanding of CVSD will be critical as we continue executing our strategic plan and addressing the statewide education funding challenges that are impacting our schools," said CVSD board chair Meghan Metzler.

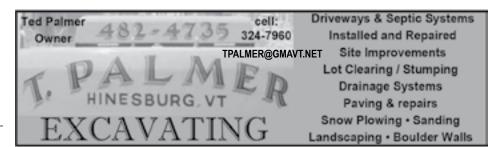

"While we have challenges ahead, I can't imagine a community more poised to engage in thoughtful, collaborative discourse and action. I care deeply about our students, community, and team of educators and am honored to serve CVSD in a new capacity," shared Bunting.

The Board of Directors will begin a search for a permanent superintendent in the fall. Additionally, the administration is in the process of identifying an interim principal for CVU and will share more information by the end of the school year.

On The Court or on the Mound. Vermont Miss Basketball Elise Berger Does It All

BY WILL THORN, COMMUNITY NEWS SERVICE

ou could call Elise Berger a Swiss Army knife, a state champion — even Captain Chaos, the nickname she earned for her messy room as a kid. Now, as her time at Champlain Valley Union High School comes to end, you can call her Miss Basketball.

Berger took the crown this year as the best player in girls high school hoops in Vermont, as selected by the Burlington Free Press. The award came on the heels of a Division I championship over St. Johnsbury Academy this March, good for the team's second title in a row.

"We all knew going into the season that this was going to be a grind," said Berger, who's played organized basketball since the first grade. "It was cool that we had six seniors on the team that have been playing together for a really long time and that we were able to bring the team together, put in all that work and have it all pay off in the

The 5 '11" point guard averaged 8.5 points, 4.5 rebounds, 4.5 assists and 3.2 steals per game for the Redhawks this season en route to earning the program a seventh Miss Basketball victory. The senior and teammates also helped send 13-year head coach Ute Otley off to her new post leading Norwich University's women's team with a record 10th DI win.

"She's pretty much a coach's dream," said Otley. Berger was a ture locker room presence who thrived in any role, she said.

Berger's win comes at a time of unprecedented focus on the women's college game and its recent superstars, like Caitlin Clark, Paige Bueckers and Angel Reese. Berger is all for the attention. "I think it's really cool to see the growth women's basketball has had," she said. "It's really cool to see that growth and it becoming a big national Otley hopes those who tuned in to watch Clark play realized just how many women play the game "in a way that's at such a high level that this is really entertaining to

Berger's playstyle is far from Clark's high-octane shooting from deep but commands a similar respect on the court. She's "a floor leader who can advance the ball quickly, who knows how to create shots for her teammates and whose presence on the floor demands so much defensive attention that she can make the defense do what she wants to do to and create the kinds of shots she wants for her teammates." Otlev said.

She likes to attack the glass and do "the smaller things that set people up and get the team in good positions," Berger said. Sometimes Otley had to remind Berger to look for her own shots, too.

Berger separates herself with her playmaking, Otley said. "We haven't had a kid at 5 '11" that can handle the ball the way she can," said the coach. Plus: "She has a true pull-up jumper."

"That combination of ball handling, size and midrange game," Otley said, "made her a pretty unique athlete that we could use defensively a million different ways."

Her athletic singularity goes further: Berger is even better with a baseball in her hand. She not only pitches for her high school's baseball team but has also twice been selected to pitch for the U.S. women's national team, which she first made at 16 – the earliest age

"There definitely are some nerves, but it's also really prideful, especially being from a small state like Vermont that a lot of people haven't heard of outside of the U.S.," she said. "Being able to show what we can do as a team is also really cool."

Berger committed to play baseball for Bard College in October of 2023. She has been in touch with current players and other commits, and is excited to get to Bard and out on the field with them. "I was definitely looking for a school that had the academics and the intensity that I was looking for but also was a supportive place to play baseball," she said. "Bard was the best mix of the two for me."

Although she loves basketball, played soccer through middle school and dabbles in mountain biking, baseball "has always been the big thing," said her mother, Elizabeth Berger.

At 4, Elise would watch Lake Monster games start to finish, and growing up she'd drift asleep to the sound of baseball broadcasts, her parents remember. She made every school project she could baseball-themed.

Berger's father, Chris, is a California native and big fan of the Golden State Warriors and Cincinnati Reds. His love of sport spread to the young Berger, who, raised in Vermont, became a Red Sox fan - an infinitely better option, she's quick to say, than choosing the Yankees. She stuck with the Warriors too for their dynastic run over the last decade.

"They've been super supportive of whatever I've wanted to do along the way," Berger said of her parents. "Whichever teams I wanted to be on, whatever training I wanted to do, different tournaments we needed to go to - it was always, 'We're going to figure out a way to make this happen for you."

That doesn't mean there haven't been challenges along the way. She felt on the same level as boys throughout Little League, but as those male teammates got older she worried she was falling behind. Those feelings continued into her first two years playing for the Bases Loaded Bulldogs, a local travel team she started playing for at 13. But by year three, feeling more trust from her team, she grew more confident. Her pitching improved.

"That year I think I grew comfortable in my role as a pitcher, understanding that I wasn't necessarily going to keep up with them velocity-wise on the mound, but I had other aspects that made me a good pitcher," she said.

It came down to work ethic. Berger said she's driven by her competitive nature, hatred of losing and the collective euphoria of team success.

"If I lose because I feel like I got outworked by somebody, that's something that drives me to keep pushing and keep working harder,"

And it shows. Said her father: "She puts in hours every week on either strength work or specific conditioning work for her pitching muscles. Since middle school, it's been pretty constant every week. She's incredibly disciplined."

Back in the summer of 2022, Berger had to miss basketball workouts because of national baseball team obligations. Otley had challenged Berger a few months prior to get faster and tighten her ball-handling, and she worried the young standout wouldn't have time to do it, the coach recalled. But Berger came back that fall with improvement in every area Otley wanted, the coach said.

Heading into last summer, Otley challenged Berger to hone her three-point shooting. Once again, Berger came through, said her coach, meaning opponents in her senior season were forced to respect her shot and bring double teams out of the post.

That dedication to her craft was present even when Otley first met Berger, when the latter was a fourth grader at a basketball camp. "I remember thinking that she was a serious little kid, very focused, very dialed in. She wasn't there to goof around; she was there to learn," Otley said.

Berger's mother recalled Elise's baseball games: "I'm there cheering her on, and I'm like, 'Hey, Elise, did you hear me cheer? and she says, 'Nope, didn't hear.' She doesn't notice anybody in the stands, she's just focused on what she needs to do.

But Berger isn't always stone-faced. "Once you break under Berger's shell, she definitely talks a lot," said basketball teammate and fellow senior Samara Ashooh. "She's a very funny person, and she's always down to go out and have some random adventure. People say that she's quiet and reserved, but I think she's actually a very open and communicative person and always a good presence to be

Berger's mother called her daughter a "chatterbox" at home. The two like to cook together, and Berger loves showing off her 30-plus Spotify playlists filled with recent music finds - lately some country, classic rock and hip hop.

As Berger steps into the more competitive college game, her parents are confident she'll be able to handle it. "Our attitude for college baseball is the same as it's been," said her father. "We feel she can usually rise to the level she needs to and work as hard as she needs to, to be competitive, and we'll see how it goes. She's going to have to earn her playing time like anybody

In the meantime, Berger said she appreciates the chance to give back to her community. She got invited to throw the first pitch on opening day this month for the Champlain Valley Little League, the same one she played in those years ago.

"I've been able to come back into my community and be a role model for younger girls," she said. "When I was younger, I know I had role models that I aspired to be, and being able to go meet and play with some of them now has been huge. I hope that I get to be that person for some girls."

Data Illustrates Hard Choices Ahead for Green Mountain Transit

BY WILL GUISBOND, COMMUNITY NEWS SERVICE

Will Guisbond performed the data analysis in this story in partnership with Mikaela Fudolig, a research assistant professor in math and statistics. The Community News Service is a program in which University of Vermont students work with professional editors to provide content for local news outlets at no cost.

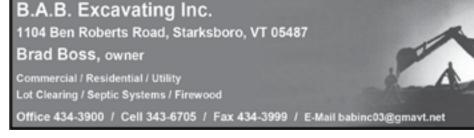

As Green Mountain Transit brings back urban bus fares for the first time since 2020, the agency appears buffeted by competing pressures: the need for revenue, the desire to retain riders and a worry that people who stick around will be worse off. Now agency leaders say not only will services likely be cut but fare increases will also continue.

"I think that there's a very good chance that, in the next six months as we start seeing what revenue is coming in from fares, that we may need to do some adjustments," said Clayton Clark, GMT general manager, noting that fares for the main intercity services in and around Burlington will go up if that revenue goal is not met.

Five years of data analyzed by Community News Service shows the state's largest transit system is approaching that inflection point on the back of haywire trends.

Green Mountain Transit eliminated fares across the state at the onset of the Covid-19 pandemic, seeking a way to help Vermonters cope with the crisis while fighting the virus' spread - without fares, passengers could enter the back of the bus and avoid walking past rows of people. Backed by federal funds, GMT kept rides free in 2020 and 2021, but facing grim finances, the agency started thinking about bringing fares back. GMT leaders asked legislators for money to keep services going while they planned the resumption. Lawmakers obliged, givthe next two years to maintain services while keeping them free.

Legislators' latest bailout, in 2023. came with a caveat: In return for $850,000, GMT needed to bring back fees in 2024 and make up 10 percent of its revenue in fares.

That condition has set the stage for the tumult GMT leaders now face as they look to reinstate fares on May 20 - although even the provider's own budget doesn't anticipate meeting 10 percent, expecting fares to only account for about 8 percent.

Ridership data from September 2018 to February 2024, provided to CNS by GMT, shows while some areas of the system boasted healthier ridership, others have seen mixed results

Take April, one of the few months that might be least subject to fluctuations triggered by school breaks and holidays. A 14-day period in ing GMT more than $2 million over April 2023 saw significantly higher ridership than the same timeframe in 2019, suggesting more people may have chosen to take advantage of the free bus rides.

to pre-pandemic levels.

"I think if we had done a fare-free experiment not in conjunction with a global pandemic, maybe we would have seen a different result," said Jamie Smith, GMT's director of planning and marketing, "but we definitely saw, which was an industry standard, a pretty large drop in ridership (after going fare-free).'

Known fare box data

The data also shows how reliant GMT's service is on certain groups of people, like students.

Distinct drops - and rises - in ridership are evident across the data when college students leave for or return from school breaks. Holiday seasons and even an unexpected shift in weather could affect overall ridership. The data also isn't exactly reliable,

Smith said, considering drivers use a keypad to manually count riders

The transit authority is rolling out a fare cap of $50 per month, meaning that if you ride the urban route twice a day, it would only take you about 13 days before the rest of your rides for that month are free.

How to Love a Forest

BY ETHAN TAPPER

s I write this, I'm finishing up my last couple weeks as the Chittenden County Forester for the Vermont Department of Forests, Parks and Recreation. My last day in this role will be May 31, marking eight years to the day since I started this job in 2016. Over the last eight years I've met thousands of you in the woods, led hundreds of public events and written more than 70 articles for a dozen community newspapers. I've written Forest Management Plans for the Andrews Community Forest. the Westford Town Lands, the Catamount Community Forest, the Huntington Community Forest, the Huntington Town Forest, the Milton Town Forest, the Indian Brook Conservation Area and the Carse Addition to the Hinesburg Town Forest. I've been humbled to receive several honors and distinctions, most recently as the National Outstanding Inspector of the Year for the American Tree Farm System. Serving as the Chittenden County Forester has been a massive honor, and a dream come true - and now it's time for me to do something else.

For six years, I woke up every morning at 5 a.m. and wrote for an hour before heading to work in the woods. Gradually, these writings became a book called "How to Love a Forest: The Bittersweet Work of Tending a Changing World," which will be coming out in September. I was inspired to write How to Love a Forest by my work as a forester, as well as by my experience caring for my own 175-acre parcel – Bear Island – that I bought in 2017. I about forests and other ecosystems and the threats that they face, but none about what we actually do about it: what it means to love an ecosystem in a world of young, simple, degraded forests, in a climate crisis and a biodiversity crisis, in a changed and changing world. Bear Island became a catalyst for the book - a forest that had every problem that a forest could have. I had to ask myself if it would be a greater kindness to Bear Island to leave it to suffer alone, or to do everything in my power to make it healthy again.

found that there were lots of books

In a world in which many people believe that loving forests means simply leaving them alone, How to Love a Forest proffers a more complex vision: that in this moment truly caring for forests means taking action to protect them, and that the actions we must take will often be as counterintuitive, uncomfortable, and bittersweet as cutting a tree to make a forest healthy again. How to Love a Forest is a reimagining of forests and our relationship to them that is beautiful and hopeful and empowering. You can pre-order How to Love a Forest anywhere that books are sold or at EthanTapper.com/book. Preordering really helps, so please pre-order if you can.

I will also be starting my own consulting forestry company -Bear Island Forestry. Bear Island Forestry will provide consulting forestry services to private landowners: advising landowners, writing Forest Management Plans and overseeing forest management projects. Bear Island Forestry's work will be grounded in the principles of ecological forestry: managing forests for biodiversity, ecological integrity and resilience above all else. I will also be consulting with government agencies, NGOs and companies to incorporate these principles into their work, as well as to improve their communication around ecosystem management projects. Learn more about Bear Island Forestry at BearIslandForestry.com

Finally, I will be continuing to do public speaking, social media, and public education and outreach. I am very active on Instagram, using the handle @HowToLoveAForest, as well as on YouTube and TikTok (also at @HowToLoveAForest) and Facebook. You can stay apprised of what I'm up to by signing up for my Aquatic and email list at EthanTapper.com.

My hope is that this career shift will allow me to effect a larger change in our understanding of forests and what it means to care for them - building a larger platform from which to advocate for forests, responsible forest stewardship, and conservation. I hope that you will follow along, pre-order the book, and that you'll be hearing from me soon.

Ethan Tapper is a forester and author from Bolton. Ethan previously served as the Chittenden County Forester, before leaving to start his own business – Bear Island Forestry – in 2024. Fourth Summer of LCA Steward Program Combats Terrestrial Invasive Species

quatic invasive plant species (AIS) have long threatened the health and populations of native plants in the Lewis Creek watershed. By forming dense mats of vegetation, AIS impede the activities of recreational boaters, swimmers, and anglers, while degrading ecosystems and wildlife habitats. Terrestrial non-native invasive plants also create hazards by altering erosion patterns, out-competing native species, and impacting water quality. Management of all invasive species can be difficult because they are easily spread via seeds, roots, fragments, animals, and by humans.

Bristol Pond and Monkton Pond, popular destinations for anglers, recreational boaters, and wildlife enthusiasts, both contain AIS. As of 2023, there were three known aquatic invasive species in Bristol Pond: European Frogbit, Eurasian Watermilfoil, and Brittle Naiad, and three aquatic invasive species in Monkton Pond: Eurasian Watermilfoil, Banded Mystery Snail, and Chinese Mystery Snail. If left unmanaged, the AIS in these ponds could spread throughout the rest of the watershed and the state. To prevent further spread, Lewis Creek Association (LCA), a local nonprofit watershed group, will be launching their fourth summer of the Boat Launch Steward Program at Bristol and Monkton ponds beginning in June LCA's Boat Launch Steward Program, funded by a grant from the Lake Champlain Basin Program (LCBP), was created to educate the public about AIS concerns within the Lewis Creek watershed. At Bristol and Monkton ponds, the boat launch stewards greet boaters as they arrive at the ponds and offer to inspect their boats for aquatic invasive species, while also collecting data on where the boat has been and how many aquatic organisms they encountered. They educate boat owners on how to prevent the spread of AIS, which includes cleaning, draining, and drying your boat (and other equipment that has been in the water!) before moving to a different water body. This could even include swimsuits and life jackets, which could carry small, microscopic organisms like the fishhook waterflea, which was recently found in Lake Champlain.

In addition to staffing the ponds on the weekends, the stewards will also take on the task of manually removing Japanese knotweed at a site along Lewis Creek in North Ferrisburgh. Japanese knotweed is a particularly tough plant to remove; it spreads primarily by its roots/rhizomes, which can break off during a continued on page 20

Spring 2024 SCHIP Grant Awards Announced

BY ALI GATELY, SCHIP PUBLICITY CHAIRPERSON

SCHIP (Shelburne, Charlotte, Hinesburg Interfaith Project) has announced its Spring 2024 grant awards. Grants in the amount of $35.020 were awarded to 13 nonprofits in our towns that met the criteria of serving the people of our communities in a variety of ways. The recipients for this cycle included: Boy Scout Troop 6110, Charlotte Senior Center, Hinesburg Nursery School, New Village Farm, Pierson Library, Shelburne Nursery School, Shelburne Parks and Recreation, St. Catherine of Siena Church, Vermont Cancer Support Network, Vermont Parks Forever, Hinesburg Community Resource Center, Charlotte Food Shelf, and Shelburne Food Shelf.

The award to New Village Farm was in the newly established Major Grants category. Grants funded in this category can range up to $15,000 and are designed to fund the necessary seed money to be used for future self-sustaining projects.

These awards are made possible as a result of SCHIP's mission to raise funds through the sale of donated, gently used clothing, household items, accessories, art, and collectibles at SCHIP's Upscale Resale Shop in the distinctive yellow building on Route 7, next to the town offices. Since the first grants given in April 2005, more than $902,600 has been distributed.

SCHIP accepts grant applications twice a year. The deadlines are March 15 and Sept. 15 of each year. The maximum grant size is $3,000 for Routine Grants and $15,000 for Major Grants. Application forms are available on the "Grants" link at: TheSCHIP.org.

As a member of our communities, you too are an important part of our mission. Come shop, donate, volunteer, and help us continue to meet our objectives for the future. For more information on grant recipients or the organization. please visit our website or our Facebook page (SCHIP's Treasure Resale Shop) or call the shop for volunteer or donation inquiries at 985-3595.

Our participating faith communities are: Charlotte Congregational Church; Hinesburg United Church; Our Lady of Mt. Carmel Catholic Church, Charlotte; Shelburne United Methodist Church; St. Catherine of Siena Catholic Church, Shelburne; St. Jude's Catholic Church, Hinesburg; Trinity Episcopal Church, Shelburne.

flood then resprout and form a new colony downstream. A prior grant to LCA documented the presence of knotweed populations in the Lewis Creek watershed, but distribution is patchy and it has not yet spread prevalently across streambanks (unlike in many other Vermont watersheds where it covers nearly every square foot available). LCA is excited to demonstrate a non-chemical removal method to the public at a site in North Ferrisburgh, where stewards will be present weekly to lead removal efforts, and to display these methods to the public. Everyone is invited to help if they wish. LCA is partnering with Mike Bald (Got Weeds?) to guide this work and demonstrate effective methods for knotweed removal without herbicides – it can be done. You can also get involved in a project that uses community science to help us understand the distribution of knotweed in the watershed using iNaturalist. LCA would love to have your involvement in one or both portions of the project. If you're interested in learning more, sign up at bit.ly/ lca-knotweed or reach out to Kate Kelly, Program Manager for Lewis Creek Association, at lewiscreekorg@gmail.com or 802-488-5203.

Since 2020, LCA's boat launch stewards have been the first line of defense against invasive species within the Lewis Creek watershed. At Bristol and Monkton ponds, stewards have interacted with over 2,000 boats, and intercepted 676 boats that had aquatic plants on them launching into the ponds. They educated many more members of the community about the threat and spread of AIS at Bristol and Monkton ponds. While conducting their duties, the boat launch stewards directly prevented potential AIS infestations to other waterbodies and may have indirectly prevented hundreds of AIS infestations by educating the public. Next time you are out at Bristol Pond or Monkton Pond, say hi to LCA's boat launch stewards. They will gladly discuss any topics regarding AIS and show you how you can do your part in preventing the spread of AIS.

We are pleased to share that the Vermont Reads selection for 2024 is Gather by Vermont author and National Book Award Finalist Kenneth M. Cadow.

Gather by Vermont author Gather is the first and National Book Award Finalist Kenneth M. Cadow is young adult novel the Vermont Reads selection by Cadow, who drew for 2024. upon his 20 years of working with middle and high school students as a teacher and administrator in rural Vermont to write this debut novel.

About the Book

Ian is a resourceful teenager from rural Vermont. He isn't supposed to have a dog, but his adopted pup Gather soon becomes a good friend. Although he hasn't yet finished high school, Ian works hard to take care of his mother, who is trying to overcome her addiction to opioids.

In between classes and other responsibilities, Ian helps his family make ends meet by fixing things for neighbors and working at a sawmill off the books. Sadly, he needed to quit the school's basketball team to support his family.

Above all, Ian wants his family to remain on the land where they have lived for generations. But after a tragedy, he and Gather leave Vermont. Living on the run, Ian draws on his wellhoned survival skills to care for himself and his dog. At the same time, a community of folks come together to try to provide a way home for Ian and Gather.

Hosting a Vermont Reads Program

For the 22nd year of the Vermont Reads program, we invite Vermont communities to plan projects centered around Gather and its themes of rural life, resilience. class differences, addiction and recovery, housing and food insecurity, a deep relationship to the land, and the power of community.

The start date for Vermont Reads 2024: Gather is July 1. Applications for projects will be accepted through June 30, 2025.

To apply for Vermont Reads 2024, and to receive free copies of Gather for your community's Vermont Reads project, go to tinyurl.com/ VTReads2024.

About the Author

Commissioners Tom Giroux, Mary Jo Brace and donors access repairs needed

troduce it to Hinesburg," Tyler explained.

While acknowledging the acceptance of the Endowment Fund, Cemetery Commissioner Mary Jo Brace shared, "We'd like to get the Village Cemetery in much better shape, and keep it that way for many years."

Sharing his appreciation for the generous gift to the town, select-board member Paul Lamberson observed, "One way to honor this generous donation is to grow it with new donations, now and in the years to come."

Donations should be made payable to the Hinesburg Cemetery Fund and can either be dropped off at the Town Clerk's office, or mailed to Hinesburg Town Clerk, 10632 Route 116, Hinesburg, VT 05461. (Please consult your tax advisor to determine deductibility.)

BACK STORIES of Hinesburg New Cemetery Endowment Fund Created

BY HINESBURG CEMETERY COMMISSION

he Town of Hinesburg maintains nine cemeteries with approximately 4,000 graves dating back to 1795. The Village Cemetery land was donated to the town by Jedidiah Boynton in 1825. Graves were moved to the Village Cemetery from a previous cemetery that was in front of where the Sarah Carpenter Memorial Library was on Route 116.

Burial spaces in the Village Cemetery used to sell by the plot, which contained six sites, or a half plot, which had three. The Village Cemetery has about 12 sites that are unsold.

Hence, it's no surprise that Hinesburg's old, full cemeteries generate a long list of maintenance and repair projects. Roads need to be maintained and ditched to manage stormwater, trees need to be trimmed or felled, and many stones need repair or resetting. The stairs near the Village Cemetery vault have also fallen into disrepair.

In the summer of 2023, the Hinesburg Cemetery Commission hosted a very successful volunteer workday. Another one is scheduled for Aug. 17 at the Village Cemetery. If participation continues, and organizational capacity exists, the volunteer days may double in the future and extend to other cemeteries.

But volunteer labor has its limits, and many of the cemeteries' needs require skilled labor and a financial layout. Recognizing this need, siblings Tyler Dawson and Beth (Dawson) Dubin generously created The Hinesburg Village Cemetery Endowment Fund in memory of their parents, Dale and Betty (Lyman) Dawson.

At the December selectboard meeting where the fund was officially accepted by the town, Tyler Dawson observed, "I was driving up the Village Cemetery road one day, and thought, 'Yup, this needs help.' So we consulted with the Cemetery Commission to create a fund that best meets their needs, while hoping the fund will grow."

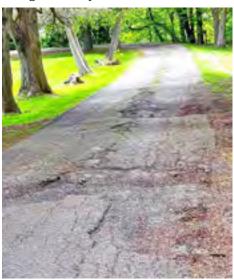

The Cemetery Endowment Fund provides a variety of incentives for the town to contribute to cemetery projects on a matching basis. In the first five years, there is also a $25,000, the fund would contribute $50,000 for an available total of $75,000. The intent is to provide an incentive for others to participate and help make the fund last for years.

Taking note of existing funds in other communities, the donors were careful to create a fund that can be used for improvements, not just repairs and maintenance. "There is very specific language in state statute that regulates these types of funds. It has been done elsewhere and we're happy to in-

VOLUNTEER OPPORTUNITIES

Make a Difference

Do you need volunteers for a Hinesburg event or non-profit organization? Send the information to news@hinesburgrecord.org and we'll publish it here. Use "volunteer need" as a subject line.

Mentorina

Hinesburg Community School is looking for Mentors! Mentors are distinct members of a team of caring adults who show up to spend an hour a week with a 5-8th grader during the school year.

Mentors bring encouragement and options for expanding a young person's regard for themselves and their world. By sharing yourself with your mentee you can inspire them to create a richer future for themselves. Contact Program Coordinator Livy Bulger at lbulger@cvsdvt.org or 802-482-6248 for more information.

Hinesburg Community Resource Center

Volunteer to help run our benefit thrift shop, Twice is Nice, in daily shifts. Or help stock shelves and offer assistance to families visiting the Food Shelf. Volunteers are needed to help with clothing and book swaps in April and October. Contact Anna Main at 802-482-4946 or at main@hinesburgresource.org for more information.

Hinesburg TrailsHelp maintain public trails. All skill levels from none (just enthusiasm) to experienced chainsaw operators, and trail designers are needed. For more information contact Ray Mainer at rmainer@gmavt.net.

Meals on Wheels

Help out local area residents who cannot easilu get out of their homes. Become a Meals on Wheels driver. Routes take anywhere from an hour to an hour-and-a-half depending on the day. You need not commit to a weekly schedule. Call Jane Gage at 802-482-6096 for more information.

Town Committees

Frequently there are openings on town committees. Here are some of the recent ones.

- Affordable Housing Committee
- Development Review Board
- Energy Committee
- Chittenden Solid Waste District
- Planning Commission
- Town Forest Committee
- Trails Committee
- Diversity, Equity, Inclusion & Belonging Committee

Check town web site hinesburg.org for the most current committee openings, descriptions and instructions on how to apply. For more information contact Katharina Frazier (Assistant Town Manager) at 802-482-2281 ext. 1 or kfrazier@hinesburg.org.

The Hinesburg Record

Help publish your community newspaper which is produced by volunteers who write, edit, and lay it out each month. The Record needs people to write and edit copy, take photos, and help with distribution and mailing. One-time or occasional submission of articles is more than welcome.
